Need for More Area At West Point Vital

By MAJ. GEN. WM. R. SMITH
Superintendent,
U. S. Military Academy

IN order to function at its maximum efficiency and maintain the high standards reached during the past 127 years, it is vitally important that the Military Academy reservation be substantially enlarged. Several facilities for training found on every large modern Post are either totally lacking at West Point or grossly inadequate. This shortcoming in our training program will eventually be evidenced in our graduates. They will leave us and go out into the Army only partially prepared to take up their life work as professional soldiers.

Lack of terrain is seriously affecting instruction in rifle marksmanship, machine gun firing and artillery. Ground for summer maneuvers and camp sites is also so restricted that this important practical training is materially curtailed. The physical condition of our athletes suffers through lack of athletic fields and without a landing field practically the only instruction cadets receive in Air Corps matters is theoretical and watching airplanes, high over head, flying up and down the Hudson.

Water Supply Threatened

The very existence of the Reservation is seriously threatened because of private ownership of several lakes which supply the Post with water. Last summer for a period of almost two months we were forced to obtain our water supply from ponds located in the Interstate Park. We were indeed fortunate that the officials in charge generously came to our assistance.

Popolopen Lake is the source of a creek from which the bulk of our water is drawn. This lake is privately owned and is being rapidly built up with sum-

Question McCoy Award

THE House Committee on Military Affairs continued the hearing on proposed legislation for the extension of the time limit in which decorations may be granted to persons who participated in the World War, on Thursday of this week. Maj. Gen. C. H. Bridges and Lt. Col. E. S. Adams, of the Adjutant General's Office, as well as Brig. Gen. G. S. Simonds, president of the Decorations Board of the War Department, and Brig. Gen. A. J. Bowley explained further the method followed by the War Department in carrying out the provisions of the various laws that have been passed awarding medals. The high light of the hearing seemed to be the questioning of the policy involved in the award of an Oak Leaf cluster to Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy for services rendered in Nicaragua. The general opinion seemed to prevail that in view of the testimony of the officers that no award is now made unless there was a recommendation on file before a certain date that in granting an award to Gen. McCoy the law was not construed perhaps according to the intent of Congress, as the award was made for extraordinary

U. S. Chamber To Study Service Pay; Congressional Committee Marks Time

DESIRE of the senatorial members of the joint pay committee for a rest following the months of tariff debate in the Senate has delayed for at least another week any action by the committee.

Representative French, vice chairman of the pay committee, following a conference with Senator Jones, the chairman, on Thursday, stated that the Senator wanted to wait for a while yet before calling a meeting of the committee, and it was agreed that when Senator Jones is ready to start, he will let French know. Meanwhile, Mr. French, though hearings have been completed on the Navy Department appropriations bill, will wait until Senator Jones gives the word.

The strain of the past few months and the pile-up of appropriation bills now before the Senate Appropriation Committee are given by Mr. Jones as reasons for holding up action on the pay question. "We will not do more than hold a preparatory meeting before Senator Reed gets back from London, anyway," Jones states.

Indications are, however, that some of the other Senators on the committee are ready to proceed, and it is thought that possibly a meeting can be held in the next week to delegate parts of the work to sub-committees which can work without the direction of the chairman.

A number of officers and enlisted men of the Marine Corps were appointed this week to appear before the Pay Committee when called upon to testify. They are:

Maj. David M. Randall, Maj. Harold C. Pierce, Maj. Matthew H. Kingman, Chief Pay Clerk Arthur D. Sisk, Chief Quartermaster Clerk Frank M. Sherwood, Quartermaster Clerk Elmer E. Barde, Paymaster Sergeant Carlton L. Post, and Staff Sergeant Edward J. McCabe, all stationed at Headquarters, Marine Corps, Washington; Sergeant William C. Harpold, Corporal Paul F. Findley and Private Colin R. Stuart, of the Marine Barracks, Washington, and First Sergeant Ernest S. Conn, of Marine Barracks, Quantico.

Two retired Marine officers will appear before the committee. They are Maj. Henry Leonard and 1st Lt. J. H. Heckman, both of Washington. Mr. Carl M. Gardner, who recently resigned his commission as first lieutenant in

Retired Officer Civilian, Attorney General Rules

IMPORTANT points of interest and concern to retired and reserve officers are brought out in the opinion of Attorney General William D. Mitchell holding that Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, USA-Ret., is eligible for appointment as one of the two "civilian" commissioners of the District of Columbia.

The decision was weighty and lengthy and is epitomized in its summary conclusion as follows:

Summary of Decision

"First—That prior to the enactment of the District of Columbia act of 1878 all three of the Commissioners of the District might have been retired Army officers.

"Second—That before, at the time of, and ever since the enactment of the District of Columbia act of 1878 retired Army officers have been, by law, eligible for any civil post under the United States, elective or to be filled by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, except diplomatic posts abroad.

"Third—That no sufficient reason can be advanced to support the view that by the act of 1878 Congress intended to depart from this practice and specifically render retired Army officers ineligible to the post of Commissioner of the District.

"Fourth—That in enumerating the qualifications of the two commissioners other than the Engineer Commissioner in the act of 1878, Congress did not specifically direct that they should be in civil life when appointed. Its reference to the two commissioners as the two 'appointed from civil life' is not the establishment of a specific qualification, but an assumption that under existing law only persons from civil life were eligible; and since under the existing law only active military officers, and not retired officers, were ineligible, the phrase 'civil life' must be construed to refer to the civil life of those engaged in civil pursuits, including retired officers, in contrast with the military life of the active Army officers.

"Fifth—The phrase 'the two to be appointed from civil life' contained in the District act, must be construed in the sense in which it was used in this particular statute.

"Sixth—To hold that a person is not

Security Guarantee For France Before Conference

By M. H. MCINTYRE

WITH both England and the United States committed, so far as can be ascertained from the maze of conflicting "official" statements, against any security pact entailing military obligations, a plenary session of the London Conference next week will officially take up the proposal of a security guarantee for France as the last resort to prevent the collapse of the parley so far as a five-power agreement is concerned.

From present indications there seems little likelihood of any offer to the French that will satisfy them and so far there is no certainty that our delegation will be in a position to subscribe to even a "consultative pact" as outlined by Secretary Stimson. There is almost an unanimity of opinion here that such an agreement, regardless of the form it assumes, would fail of ratification by the Senate.

Mystery in Announcement

Considerable mystery still surrounds the dramatic announcement by Secretary Stimson that ran counter to the views expressed at the White House but a few hours earlier. There is considerable speculation over the "crossed wires" that resulted in such diverging viewpoints.

Should this supreme effort to get the five powers together fail, a three-power agreement will be resorted to, according to the nearest approach to official information available.

Here is where issues of vital importance to American security are involved. French and Italian naval strengths are academic questions so far as the United States is concerned, except as they effect the size of the British and Japanese navies. The real problems of naval limitation effecting us are the relative standings of the latter two and our own fleet.

Postponement of the extraordinary session of the Japanese cabinet on March 27, at which acceptance of the American modified formula of cruiser ratio was forecast due to opposition by the General Staff, leaves the outcome in doubt.

No Opposition

In Naval circles here there has been no opposition voiced and practically none privately expressed against the administration's efforts to secure a limitation agreement. There is grave

Adm. Bristol Heads Navy General Board

TWO appointments of great importance to naval personnel were made this week. On Wednesday Adm. Mark L. Bristol was named chairman of the executive committee of the General Board to succeed Rear Adm. Andrew L. Long, and the following day Acting Secretary Jahncke announced the roster of the Selection Board which will meet on May 12.

Vice Adm. Lucius A. Bostick heads the list of admirals, followed by Vice Adm. William C. Cole and Rear Adms. Mark L. Bristol, Jehu V. Chase, George C. Day, Luke McNamee, Frank H. Clark, Ridley McLean and Henry V. Butler. Comdr. R. S. Crenshaw will act as recorder.

Adm. Bristol gains the board chairmanship after a long and distinguished career in the Navy. Born in Glasboro, N. J., April 19, 1868, he has spent 47 of his 62 years in his country's service. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1887 and served in the various grades, reaching his present rank in 1921.

During the World War Adm. Bristol commanded the USS Oklahoma, which operated in the war zone and received the Distinguished Service Medal for his services in this connection. After the war, he was placed in command of the Naval Base at Plymouth, England, and in 1919 was sent to Turkey where he stayed until 1927. Part of this time he was United States High Commissioner to Turkey.

In 1927, he was assigned to command the Asiatic Fleet, from which duty he returned last December as a member of the General Board.

Four members of the May Selection Board hold high commands in the fleet, Adm. Bostick commanding the Battleship Divisions, and Adm. Butler the Aircraft Squadrons of the Battle Fleet; Adm. Cole commands the Scouting Fleet and Adm. Clark the Light Cruiser Divisions of the Scouting Fleet.

The remainder of the Selection Board is on duty at the Navy Department. The General Board is represented by the newly appointed chairman of the executive committee, and Adms. Chase and Day. Adm. McNamee, director fleet training, and Adm. McLean, budget officer of the department, complete the group which will select next year's promotion slate.

Hospital Bill Reported

THE House Committee on Naval Affairs this week voted to report the bill providing for a new Naval Hospital at Philadelphia.

Hearings were completed last Friday, and on Tuesday it was decided to favorably report the measure. Representative McClintic argued at some length to get the committee to cut down the size of the hospital to accommodate only naval personnel, but his amendment limiting the hospital to 400 beds, to cost $1,250,000 received no support.

As reported, the bill will authorize an appropriation of $3,000,000 for approximately a 600 bed hospital, 400 beds of which will be used by Veterans' Bureau patients. The question of a site was not determined by the committee, though a clause allowing $200,000 for the purchase of one was placed in the bill.

Nothing apparently will be done in connection with the proposal to recall the Public Works, put forward by the members of the committee last week, unless it is amended when brought up on the floor of the House. There will probably be objection on the part of one of the two bills as the Public Works bill totaling $10,000,000 about reached the budgetary allowance of the Navy.

Press Discusses Furore Over Williams Resignation

A DIVISION of opinion is noticed in the editorial columns of American newspapers over the merits of the now famous Al Williams case. Pending congressional investigations tend to keep the matter of Lt. Williams' resignation from the Navy, following his assignment to sea duty, and the general question of the Navy's alleged deficiency in high speed air planes before the public.

Some of the newspapers consider the action of the Navy Department in ordering Williams to sea as entirely justified in view of his failure to produce any results, others believe that regardless of the results he has accomplished, he should take his regular turn of sea duty. The majority, however, label the Navy's action as "bureaucratic red tape," and "shortsightedness." These papers call for a complete investigation, and a few of them raise the old cry of a separate air force.

"IN the circumstances some investigation is warranted," says the Buffalo News (Republican). "For the charge is that Lt. Williams was ordered to sea while in the midst of important research and experimental work in aviation. This does not appear as wise or efficient administration of naval affairs. Civil aeronautics perhaps will benefit by the Navy's loss of a crack flier."

THE North Adams (Mass.) Transcript (Independent) states: "It appears to have been a short-sighted policy which led our Navy to withdraw from these races and sacrifice the benefits of the experience they give, and again it was a mistake to send Lt. Alford J. Williams, leading Navy pilot, back to sea duty when he was developing, with the aid of private capital, aircraft which might have competed with foreign-made military planes and the advanced features of which would have been available for study by the Navy."

TECHNICALLY, the order was justified," the New York News (Independent) affirms. "Williams had backed up a lot of unserved time on some cruiser or battleship. Actually, the order's enforcement would have set a highly valuable aviator to performing duty which could profit neither the Navy nor himself."

"Williams resigned, to go after the better pay and wider opportunities to be found in civil aviation. He is No. 19 on the list of able Army and Navy fliers who have done the same thing in the last few years. Chiefly because they could not give their best talents to their country without the hindrance of red tape and departmental or staff jealousy of the flying service."

"Senator Tydings of Maryland wants to bring all this out in a congressional investigation of Williams' case. It would do no harm to air this incident and as many of the other eighteen as convenient. It might jolt some sense into a swivelchair ornament here and there."

"MEN like Lt. Williams are needed in the Navy," declares the Brownwood (Texas) Bulletin (Democratic), "so long as the Navy has an aviation branch, and ought to be induced to stay in the Navy and encouraged to use their talents and their energies in developing naval aviation. Red tape and unnecessary regulations are driving many of them out of the military service."

THE Portland (Me.) News states: "It is to be hoped that Senator Hale, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, will stand firm in this case. The loss of Lt. Williams is regrettable; it would be more regrettable if the Government were, in effect, to be held up or hampered in its policy by any officer who considered 'stunting' more important than regular duty, or if discipline were to be impaired by favoritism."

Public Supports Services

(The Journal herewith continues the publication of expressions of public opinion on the service pay movement. They show beyond a shadow of doubt the preponderance of favor strongly in support of the service demands. No adverse public opinion has yet come to view.)

Leavenworth, Kans.

AT a recent directors' meeting of the Leavenworth, Kans., Chamber of Commerce, Mr. E. Mezzer, of the Reveille Legging Co. brought to the directors' attention the service pay problem and suggested that the Chamber of Commerce adopt resolutions recommending the passage of an Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey Pay Bill.

Mr. Mezzer is widely known by Army Officers through his connections and frequent visits to virtually all of the Army Posts of America.

The following resolution was adopted by the Leavenworth Chamber:

Whereas, The Leavenworth, Kansas, Chamber of Commerce is interested in the welfare and efficiency of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey, and

Whereas, The compensation of the personnel of the Army and other branches of service named above; appears to be proportionately below the scale of compensation of persons in other branches of the government service and below the compensation for comparable services in civil life.

Whereas, The inadequate rate of pay which now prevails makes it difficult, if not impossible, for Officers of the Army and others in the service, to live at a standard which is reasonable and proper for their positions and to care for and educate their children in an adequate way, and to make suitable provisions for the future of the members of their families.

Whereas, It is the opinion of the Leavenworth Chamber of Commerce, that the report of the Interdepartmental Pay Board constitutes a reasonable basis upon which to frame Congressional Legislation in the matter of pay increase of Officers and men in government service, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Leavenworth, Kansas, Chamber of Commerce does recommend that said report be considered by Congress as a substantial source of information upon which to found legislation and does urge that prompt action be taken to remedy present conditions, by the passage of an equitable pay bill to provide adequate and just compensation to the personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey, and

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the President, to the chairman of the Military Committee of the Senate and House, and to our Senators and Congressmen and to the United States Chamber of Commerce. The Leavenworth Chamber of Commerce.

Oklahoma

THE following letter has been sent by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of Oklahoma to Congress:

From: The Committee of Governmental Contact.

To: Members of the 71st Congress of the United States.

Subject: Increase in compensation of officers and men of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health and Geodetic Survey.

Gentlemen:—A study has been made by the committee on Governmental Contact of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of Oklahoma, of the recommendations made by the Interdepartmental Board appointed by the Secretaries of the Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce, for an increase in compensation for officers and men, (both active and retired) of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health and Geodetic Survey.

Action has also been taken by the officers of numerous other organizations, memorializing Congress to concur in the recommendations submitted by the Interdepartmental Board.

In the light of the fact that the cost of living, based on the Department of Labor figures, has increased approximately 104 per cent since the passage of the last joint pay bill and in order to retain the services of officers and enlisted men of ability and valuable qualities, the Chamber of Commerce of

"BEFORE we get very far with this threatened sortie in Congress over the resignation from the naval service of Lt. Alford J. Williams, the speed flier," comments the Philadelphia Enquirer (Republican), "it will be just as well if consideration is given to the fact that this young man left the service voluntarily after being ordered to duty at sea such as is performed regularly by virtually all his fellow officers. Williams' experiments in the design of speed planes are a credit to his enthusiasm; but they have not produced many results that have attracted the attention of the American people, and the extravagant boasts concerning his speed achievements in advance of the Schneider Cup races last year placed the United States in a most humiliating position. The tests of his plane, upon which the Navy Department insisted, showed that it could not qualify."

"The issue now being raised by Senator Tydings of Maryland, who wants an investigation of the matter, apparently dates from that time. * * * It will do no harm to have the whole matter aired now; but it is to be hoped that we are not going to be plagued with another case such as that of Col. Mitchell of the Army Air Service a few years ago."

"MANY other prominent aviators have quit the service," the Philadelphia Public Ledger (Independent Republican) points out, "most of them to enter the commercial field. In several instances it has been intimated that they resigned because promotion, and hence, better compensation, had been denied them in the army or naval air corps. Here is a broader field for inquiry than the one just selected. Is legislation designed to expedite promotion and to open higher ranks in the air services to pilots adequate and effective? If not, why not? Military aviation should, if possible, retain such able fliers to aid in its own development. It should not become a mere training school for commercial fliers."

"NAVY men, under an act of Congress, must go to sea," states the San Francisco Call Bulletin (Independent). "Unless they do, they cannot be promoted to a higher grade, and that is, in general, a wise regulation, because dry-land sailors would be of little use to their country in time of stress. * * *

"The Navy says: 'We must obey the law, without exceptions.' But if the present regulations hamper the development of aviation in the Navy, then change that old law to fit modern needs."

"GREATER than his love for the Navy is Lt. Al Williams' ambition to bring the seaplane speed record back to the United States," avers the Galveston News (Democrat).

"* * * If the Navy were interested, Williams is by long odds the most logical man to make the attempt. * * * But it is a question whether the development of super-speed planes and the training of men to fly them is of such practical use to aviation, either military or commercial. Seemingly the Navy department thinks it is not."

"WILLIAMS, a very valuable young officer, resigned when he was notified of his transfer," notes the Troy (N. Y.) Morning Record (Independent Republican). "This means that the service has lost a technician who should have been permitted to continue his experiments."

"We should have the best possible air service, both for our Army and Navy. If reliance can be placed in Senator Tydings' assertions, we are behind several of the great powers. Such a condition should not prevail. Our unpreparedness in previous wars is well known. It should be guarded against in the future."

the State of Oklahoma, deems it essential that such men be compensated in accordance with their worth and with regard to the American standard of living. We are therefore urging the Oklahoma representatives in Congress to do all in their power to have legislation enacted during the 71st Congress, that will lead to an increased compensation for the officers and enlisted men and the personnel of the above named services.

Very respectfully yours,
Chamber of Commerce of the State of Oklahoma.

By action of the Committee of Governmental Contact.
W. B. Estes, Secretary.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

Resolution adopted by Board of Directors, Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce:

Whereas, It is generally recognized that the pay of officers and men of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service, and Nurse Corps, both active and retired, are considerably underpaid as compared with civilians in similar positions of responsibility and so low that it has been impossible for many officers and men to meet the financial requirements of mere necessities, and

Whereas, After a careful study by a body known as the Interdepartmental Pay Board duly authorized under the direction of the Secretaries of the Treasury, Army, Navy and Commerce, to consider a proposed Joint Service Pay Bill for the entire personnel of the military and naval forces of the United States has resulted in recommendations for new pay tables designed to improve present conditions, and

Whereas, The Board of Directors of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce of Chattanooga, Tenn., considers the recommendations of the Interdepartmental Pay Board meritorious equitable and just, and the enactment of said proposed measure by Congress will be a recognition of faithful service; that it will be the means of preventing a continued flow of resignations from the services; will draw into the service of the different departments of the military forces men of ability, and will be an added stimulus to the service throughout. Therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce, that the recommendations of the aforesaid Interdepartmental Pay Board should promptly be made effective, and, be it further

Resolved, That the Senators and Representatives in the Congress of the United States give due consideration to such recommendations, and, be it further

Resolved, That we recommend that any increase in compensation granted the active list be made applicable to officers and men on the retired list, based upon the compensation of officers and men on the active list, of like grade and rank, and, be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Secretaries of the Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce, members of the Joint Congressional Pay Committee, Senators and Congressmen from Tennessee and the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

Waukegan-North Chicago

THE following resolution was adopted by the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce:

Whereas, since the enactment of legislation for adjustment of pay of members of our military services, there has been a marked increase in the actual cost of living necessities, and

Whereas, because the members of such military services are, by comparison, materially underpaid with reference to other governmental departments—especially so, in consideration of the numerous and varied demands upon them for performance of duties at any and all times and places, and

Whereas, as the result of serious financial difficulties encountered by the personnel of these services, and because of their inadequate pay, many members thereof have, from time to time, found it necessary to seek employment in civil life, thereby depriving the Government of trained and efficient individuals, in increasing numbers, and mer bungalows and camps. Within the near future these campers will present a serious problem because of the possibility of their contaminating the water. Engineers surveying this lake state that by raising its level ten feet we would be assured of an ample water supply and the existing problem in connection with this vital necessity would be eliminated.

The present rifle range is wholly inadequate and antiquated. Only at the 200 and 300 yard firing points can all the targets be used. In case of wet weather the field practically becomes a swamp and these ranges must be closed. At the 500 and 600 yard firing points, less than half the targets can be used and then only through utilizing platforms which enable cadets to fire from two levels. This condition accounts for the difficulty experienced in qualifying cadets in rifle marksmanship. In addition to the above handicaps, the range is probably the most dangerous in the entire country, as along one side it is paralleled by the tracks of the West Shore Railroad. A constant danger from ricochets exists.

Firing Ranges Needed

Machine gun firing is restricted to a thousand inch range and throughout the cadets' four years at the Military Academy they never have an opportunity to fire this weapon at longer ranges. Another range which is sorely needed is for artillery. When the Storm King Highway was opened, we were forced to abandon the range then in use. Since that time the only artillery firing the cadets ever see or hear at West Point is when a saluting battery turns out to render the prescribed salutes to distinguished visitors.

For a great many years a practice march for the fourth class was held on the east bank of the Hudson. Last year we were forced to abandon this practice because of the density of population and the march was held in the area to the south and southwest of the Reservation. Considerable difficulty, however, was experienced in obtaining camp sites and within the next few years all suitable ground will undoubtedly be occupied by summer campers and shacks. This will result in materially interfering with this phase of practical military instruction. Maneuver grounds and camp sites for the remainder of the Corps is not only restricted, but also in many respects unsuitable.

Bill Introduced

Representative Hamilton Fish has introduced a bill calling for an acquisition of approximately 10,000 acres. If this bill becomes a law, the present and future needs of the Military Academy will be provided for. The property desired is bound to increase in value as the northward trend of population from New York City evidences itself. Eventually it must be acquired and its acquisition in the near future will result in a material saving to the Government.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

New Inf. School Policy

PRESENT War Department policy requires that no officer who is eligible to take the Company Officers' Course or the Advanced Course, and who is stationed at the special service school of his branch, will be permitted to leave that station before taking such course. As a result of this policy a situation has arisen wherein many officers attending the Company Officers' Course for one year, immediately thereafter have been assigned to some duty at the post of the service school, and upon completion of a normal tour of duty thereat, have fallen within the War Department policy already mentioned which requires their attendance at the Advanced Course before leaving Ft. Benning. Consequently, a large number of officers who have been selected to attend the 1930-1931 Advanced Course at the Infantry School are now stationed at Ft. Benning.

Present plans contemplate correcting this situation, in part, by future assignment of graduates of the Company Officers' Course to stations other than Ft. Benning for a normal tour of duty immediately subsequent to such graduation. Necessary replacements for the school staff and troops at Ft. Benning will usually be furnished from graduates of the Advanced Course, supplemented by junior officers who are graduates of the Company Officers' Course, and who, after a normal tour of duty at Ft. Benning, would be ineligible under existing policies for the Advanced Course upon completion of their detail at Ft. Benning.

Adherence to such a policy is construed as offering the best opportunity for a normal flow of Infantry officers to and from the Infantry School, resulting in increased benefits to Infantry activities regardless of location.

Instruct In Shoeing

INSTRUCTION of officers in the subject of horseshoeing in troop schools will be effective in the school year 1930-1931.

It is required that all officers of Cavalry, Infantry, and Field Artillery, not on duty with motorized units, be instructed sufficiently to insure proper shoeing under all circumstances likely to occur in the various arms and services which employ animals. This instruction will be given in troop and special service schools.

Those affected are Capt. Joseph L. Tupper, 24th Inf.; Richard O. Bassett, 29th Inf.; James P. Lyons, 24th Inf.; 1st Lts. Dwight L. Adams, and William E. Donegan, both 29th Inf.; and Cpl. Robert M. Foster, Company F, 1st Tank Regiment.

One of the newest units in the recreational center is the bowling alley recently opened by the book shop of the Academic Department. At a cost of $6,000 four bowling alleys, two of them with automatic pin setters, have been constructed.

Prizes for two classes of scores made during the period of Jan. 1st to May 31st have been offered by the book shop. For the highest average of five highest scores a prize of $25.00 cash or a piece of silver or other merchandise of equal value is offered. A similar prize is offered to the player who makes the greatest number of scores of 200 or more during the same period. Another prize of five dollars cash is offered for each new high score. Maj. USA Commands Permanent

AT the Brooklyn Army Base, eastern terminus of the Army's navy, the old-time custom which gave command of Army transports to the senior line officer among the passengers now gives way.

Announcement from headquarters of Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the 2nd Corps Area, states that hereafter permanent commanding officers, picked from the Army at large for their special qualifications, are to be placed in charge of all passenger vessels of the Army Transport Service.

Already orders detailing Lt. Col. Charles W. Mason, Inf., to command of the Chatieu Thierry and Maj. Robert E. Jones, Inf., in charge of the St. Mihiel, have been issued.

While actual navigation of Army transports, both on the high seas and in port, will remain, as always, in the hands of duly registered maritime officers, engaged by the Army as Civil Service employees, in the future the Army officers commanding transports will be members of the permanent ship staff, continuing in that capacity on successive voyages.

ABERDEEN INCIDENT AND REBUKE AROUSES TALK

CONSIDERABLE discussion has been aroused in civilian circles as well as in the Army over the publication of an article in the daily newspapers supported by statements from the Chief of Staff, to the effect that Gen. Summerall reprimanded personnel of the Aberdeen Proving Ground during a visit to that establishment Friday, March 21. The incident, referred to in the press as an "insult" to the Chief of Staff, has been characterized in many quarters as a "slap in the eye" for not only the Proving Ground but for the Ordnance Department in general.

In making public reference to the incident without referring to what actually happened the press dispatches have elaborated on the probable cause of the General's ire. These have varied from one rumor to the effect that certain officers at Aberdeen gave a sort of mock salute with a new gun, the test of which was to have been witnessed by the Chief of Staff, to another that a young officer was too zealous in his explanation of the gun, "unmindful of the fact that the General long has been an expert on all types of Army ordnance."

The facts, as gathered by the Journal, are briefly these. Gen. Summerall, accompanied by a ranking Ordnance Officer, journeyed from Washington to Aberdeen to witness a demonstration of a new style gun mount. Upon his arrival at Aberdeen he was met by the Commanding Officer of the Proving Ground and officers of his staff who extended the customary military courtesies. Two officers, one of whom was in charge of operations on the front on which the test was to have been conducted, and who was some distance from the official party, and another, a junior officer, whose duties in connection with the test are said to have required him to be elsewhere, although within sight of the party, did not join in the reception. Both were summoned by the Chief of Staff and were told of their discourtesy. Thereupon the General refused to allow the demonstration to go on and without delay returned to Washington.

Speculation has been rife in Army circles in Washington as to the reason for such summary action on the part of the Chief of Staff both as to the reprimand and the publicity given it and also his refusal to observe the test. Just why the actual demonstration, for which the Chief of Staff was making an official visit to the testing ground, was called off is not known.

Gen. Summerall told the newspaper men that "The deportment of some of the officers was not satisfactory and corrective measures were taken on the spot." He said the affair was closed as far as he was concerned. Secretary Hurley, at a press conference, repeated this sentiment and said that the affair was concluded.

However, it is learned that a detailed report on the incident has been compiled by Lt. Col. Edward M. Shinkle, commandant of Aberdeen, and forwarded the chief of ordnance. Ordnance officers are quoted as denying emphatically that any discourtesy to the Chief of Staff was even remotely intended.

It is said, that Gen. Summerall himself waived official ceremony before his arrival, and that the character of the duties imposed upon the officers whom he charge with discourtesy prevented them from leaving their posts to pay their respects to him. Moreover, a proving ground is a different kind of establishment from a post, and it is suggested that in spite of Gen. Summerall's waiver of ceremonies, he apparently desired them. Gen. Summerall has declined to make any extended explanation of the incident.

KENNEDY SUCCEEDS McCORMICK

REAR ADM. ROBERT M. KENNEDY, MC, will succeed Rear Adm. Albert M. D. McCormick, MC, as president of the Naval Retiring Board, and as a member of the Board of Medical Examiners and the Naval Examining Board (medical). Adm. McCormick retired on Thursday.

The new president of the Retiring Board will not take up his new duties until May 1, when he will be relieved by Capt. Farenholt as officer in charge of the Inspection Division, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. Capt. Farenholt was selected this week for promotion to the rank of rear admiral made vacant by the retirement of Adm. McCormick.

Adm. McCormick was born at Berryville, Va., March 27, 1866. He graduated from the University of Maryland School of Medicine and College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1888 and was commissioned as assistant surgeon in the Navy on July 23, 1888.

He was awarded a letter of commendation for his service as head of Department of Physiology and Hygiene, and senior medical officer, U. S. Naval Academy, during the World War, and was awarded the decoration of "The Order of the Bust of Bolivar" by Venezuela.

ASKS FOR "DISCHARGED" NAVY PARROT THAT TALKS

PUBLICATION of the ALNAV recently issued by the Secretary of the Navy barring all parrots from aboard ship resulted in the receipt of the following letter by Acting Secretary Jahncke:

"Saw in the paper where you were going to dishonorably discharge all the parrots in the Navy. We live in the country and I sure would like to have one that talks. We are not afraid of the disease and will pay the postage on one of these birds if you will only send one of them. Oblige, Mrs. V. C. Wilson, Route No. 1, Berlin Center, Ohio."

DEPARTMENT OPPOSES REP. JAMES' RATION BILL

THE War Department, upon request of the House military committee, reports its strong opposition to Mr. James' bill, H. R. 2017, prescribing the Army ration. It is contended that, while the ration prescribed in this bill is about the equivalent of the present Regular Army ration, it removes the authority of the President and prevents facile changes or adaptations in time of emergency, and makes no provision, as does the present ration, for the special requirements of the ROTC, the CMTC, the enlisted sick in hospitals, etc.

The ration prescribed in H. R. 2017 is not sufficiently elastic to be changed as emergency may require without new legislation, the War Department explains.

BARNABY TO JUDGE GLIDER CONTEST

L. T. RALPH S. BARNABY, USN, the Bureau of Aeronautics' glider expert, has been selected as the chief judge for the New York Glider Carnival, to be held at the Queensboro Golf and Country Club at Bayside, L. I., April 25 and 26.

Seventeen trophies have been offered for the occasion which is expected to be one of the largest contests of the sport yet to be held in this country. Miss Amelia Earhart is in charge of the women's events.

WHAT HAPPENS TO PAY RESOLUTIONS?

WHEN an organization adopts a resolution favoring the proposed pay revision for the services what sort of a reaction follows? This question is partially answered by the experience of the Commission of the city of Pensacola, Fla., which recently adopted such a resolution.

First a letter was received from Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, who informed them that the resolution had been presented to the chief executive. Senator Trammell and Senator Fletcher, of Florida, wrote saying that they would give the increase pay legislation their consideration. Howard F. Sedgewick, clerk of the House committee on military affairs, replied that he was glad to have the views of the Pensacola commission and promised to refer the document to the joint committee on pay. Rodney E. Marshall, clerk of the Senate committee on naval affairs, said that he would give the resolution to Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the committee on pay. And a letter was received from Lt. Col. Hartman L. Butler, USA, thanking the city for its thoughtful action.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY RECOMMENDS TEACHERS PAY INCREASE

IN view of the comparisons made by the Bureau of Efficiency between the pay of teachers and service officers it is interesting to note the recommendations made by the president of Columbia University in his latest annual report. Three reasons for the increase are presented: First, the entrance upon the academic career must be made far more inviting than it now is; second, the academic career should carry with it a freedom which is as large as possible, and third, the academic career should offer to the scholar and man of science who has passed his period of probation and definitely established himself in reputation and in service, an emolument greatly in excess of that which is now usual for him. A scale of from $12,000 to $18,000 is recommended for professors, and from $9,000 to $10,000 for associate professors. Assistant professors under the recommended scale would receive from $5,000 to $7,500, while instructors would get from $3,600 to $4,800, and assistant instructors from $2,000 to $2,400.

BEAM TRANSMISSION GIVES STRONG T. H.-D. C. CONTACT

INSTEAD of using 200 kilowatts, as was recently considered about the minimum for trans-oceanic radio transmission, the War Department Message Center early this week employed ten kilowatts and communicated with Honolulu from midday on, and received reports of increasingly strong reception. Hitherto the vernal equinox has proved a most unfavorable time for this transmission, and mid-day transmission had not been accomplished. High frequency instead of low frequency, with beam antennae, explains the achievement, Capt. Frank E. Stoner, SC, commanding the Message Center, explains.

Communication with Manila at mid-day is anticipated within a few days.

"OLD IRONSIDES" BILL PASSED BY CONGRESS

COMPLETION of the restoration of "Old Ironsides" was assured by the passage this week of a joint congressional resolution appropriating $300,000 from the Treasury to carry on the work which has so far been advanced by popular subscription.

With the launching of the Constitution in Boston with the hulk of the ship finished some days ago, further refitting was discontinued on the masts, rigging and upper works due to the exhaustion of about $600,000 which had been raised in a large part by the donation of the pennies of school children. As the contributions had stopped coming in, in sufficient volume to carry forward the work, Congress was asked to finish the job, and did so.

Adm. Long Retires

THE retirement for age of Rear Adm. Andrew T. Long, USN, was announced by Acting Secretary Jahncke this week to become effective on April 6. Adm. Long has been nominated by President Hoover as the candidate of the United States for membership on the Board of Directors of the International Hydrographic Bureau at Monaco.

Adm. Long has been known as one of the Navy's greatest hydrographers and was well known as a diplomat and linguist, as well as a brilliant naval officer. He was born in Iredell County, N. C., April 6, 1866, and entered the United States Naval Academy in 1883, graduated in 1887 and commissioned Ensign in 1889.

While in the grade of Ensign he elected to specialize in surveying and hydrography and served on the USS Blake engaged in that duty. This interest in hydrography was actively maintained throughout his career and while Chief of the Bureau of Navigation he had the Hydrographic Officer under his charge.

During the World War, Adm. Long, then a captain, commanded first the USS Connecticut and later the USS Nevada, with the Battleship Division in Bantry Bay, Ireland, cooperating with the British Fleet. For this service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He was Liaison Officer in Paris with the Supreme War Council, October 1918, until after the Armistice.

Among other important duties performed by Adm. Long, was as Director of Naval Intelligence to which office he brought his previous experience as Naval Attache and made an enviable record in that office. Later he assumed the duties of Chief of Staff in the United States Atlantic Fleet and subsequently hoisted his flag as Vice Admiral commanding forces in European waters on the USS Utah.

Adm. Long became Chief of the Bureau of Navigation in July 1923. His knowledge of the needs of the Navy assisted in his administration of that office in an eminently satisfactory manner. From that duty he was assigned as a member of the General Board.

In 1925, Adm. Long was a delegate to the Conference on Traffic in Arms at Geneva and in 1926, 1927 and 1928 he was Naval Advisor to the Geneva Preparatory Commission for Disarmament. In 1927 he was also technical advisor in the Three Power Conference at Geneva.

Besides the Distinguished Service Medal awarded by the President, Adm. Long holds the following decorations: Military Order of Avis, by Portugal; Grand Officer of the Order of Leopold, by the King of Belgium; Commander of the Legion of Honor by the French for service as Naval Attache in Paris, "in the performance of duty manifested the highest qualities of intelligence and devotion to the common cause;" West Indies Campaign Medal for the Spanish-American War; Campaign Medal for the Boxer Campaign; Medal for Philippine Insurrection; Victory Medal, World War.

Commenting on Adm. Long's retirement, Secretary Jahncke says: "The retirement of Adm. Long takes from the active list an officer whose entire career is an example of preparation for responsible duties in advance of the position which he was holding. His tact, gracious manner, wit and ability, coupled with a clear thinking and logical mind, have won for him a host of friends throughout the naval and diplomatic world and in addition, as a naval officer he upheld and exemplified the highest traditions of the Service."

Analyzes Efficiency Report

LT. COMDR. W. I. LEHRFELD, USN, whose comprehensive digest of pay conditions under the 1922 pay act were published in the Feb. 22 issue of the Army and Navy Journal, has prepared a second edition of the argument entitled "2nd Edition, So He Who Runs May Read." The new digest treats of the Bureau of Efficiency Report as it affects Naval officers. It follows:

(1) Vital Need of Personnel

The operation of the harsh, discriminatory and inadequate provisions of the 1922 Pay Law has long since been a matter of common knowledge, resulting in the continued impairment of the efficiency and morale of Naval personnel.

(2) No Consideration for Need of Personnel

Notwithstanding the comprehensive scope of its authority, under one of its functions to investigate the needs of personnel, the Bureau of Efficiency in studying the able and judicious recommendations of the Interdepartmental Pay Board, omitted to give any consideration whatever to the urgent necessity for a revision of the 1922 Pay Law. Nor has any consideration been given to the necessity for an upward revision, where such necessity in fact exists.

(3) Comparison Is Unreasonable

The comparison of pay between Naval commissioned personnel on one hand, and engineers, instructors and business employees on the other, is based upon mistaken premises, because these two groups: (a) Live under different conditions; (b) Are classified for compensation differently; (c) Have dissimilar responsibilities and advantages, and (d) The Efficiency Report figures are not representative.

(4) Misleading Effect of Efficiency Report

About 2,100 line officers from commander down through lieutenant commander, lieutenant and junior lieutenant, entered the service between 1903 and 1922, no one of whom receives the average annual compensation indicated in the Efficiency Report. The actual annual compensation of these 2,100 officers, assuming all of them receive "dependent" allowances, amounts to about $1,270,000 less than the total compensation of these same officers, if the figures in the Efficiency Report were used. The report, at least in this respect, is misleading.

(5) Another Vital Misleading Effect of the Report

The Bureau of Efficiency Report is again vitally misleading because its table of comparisons presupposes that every officer receives "dependent" allowances, which is decidedly incorrect. So, officers serving without the prescribed dependents, and whose pay is accordingly exclusive of "dependent" allowances, are omitted from the table of comparisons. The gross, unjust discrimination against this large group of officers, in the matter of unequal pay, from which relief has been patiently sought for nearly eight years, is thus concealed, the effect of which is to magnify the already existing burdens of injustice and discrimination. The pay of these officers, omitted from the table of comparisons, already far below that of their brother officers of equal rank and service, if equitably compared with those of the civilian group, will show an astonishing disparity warranting immediate relief.

Examples: Lieutenant commander's pay (13 years' commissioned service without prescribed dependents) at sea amounts to $3,099.

Bureau of Efficiency Reports, with 13 years' service, (1) civil engineer's pay, $5,500; (2) college instructor's pay, $4,450; (3) business employee's pay, $7,200.

To Assign Ensigns

ASSIGNMENTS for members of the graduating class at the Naval Academy are being drawn up by the superintendent of the Academy in accordance with instructions sent him by the Bureau of Navigation this month.

In the allotment of the ensigns to the various ships, it is planned to distribute as evenly as possible those who will be detached for aviation training. Of the estimated number of midshipmen who will be commissioned as line officers, 330, more than half, approximately 180, will be qualified applicants for aviation training.

As a large proportion of these will probably be assigned to classes at Pensacola during the first few months of 1931, the superintendent is advised to assign graduates to the various vessels in order that too many officers will not be withdrawn from a ship at a time.

One hundred and ninety ensigns will be assigned duty on vessels on the Pacific coast. In this group there will be detailed 100 officers who are qualified applicants for aviation training. They will be allotted to vessels in the following numbers:

Ship	Total No.	No. of qualified applicants
California	14	7
Colorado	14	7
Idaho	14	7
Maryland	14	7
Mississippi	14	8
Nevada	14	8
New Mexico	14	8
New York	16	8
Oklahoma	15	8
Tennessee	14	7
West Virginia	14	7
Lexington	14	8
Saratoga	15	8
Omaha	4	2

On the Atlantic coast, there will be 80 qualified applicants among the 140 ensigns assigned to duty. They will be proportioned as follows:

Ship	Total No.	No. of qualified applicants
Texas	15	9
Arkansas	17	11
Florida	17	11
Utah	18	11
Wyoming	17	11
Cincinnati	4	2
Concord	4	2
Detroit	4	2
Marblehead	5	2
Memphis	4	2
Milwaukee	4	2
Raleigh	5	2
Richmond	4	2
Trenton	4	2
Chester	4	2
Pensacola	3	2
Houston	4	2
Salt Lake City	3	1
Northampton	4	2

Thirty-five ensigns will be sent to Hampton Roads for a one-month course in elimination aviation training on June 16, and a like number to the Naval Air Station at San Diego on July 23. Following the completion of their courses these ensigns will be granted approximately a month's delay in reporting to duty on the ships to which they are assigned. They will report for duty upon the completion of the midshipmen's cruise, about the first of September.

Another group of 35 will be sent to Hampton Roads on July 16 for a month's elimination flight training, and a similar number to San Diego on July 23.

Ensigns not qualified for aviation training who are designated for assignment to the USS Arkansas, Florida and Utah will probably be assigned temporary duty to other vessels in the scouting fleet, from about July 12 to September 1.

In addition to allotting the graduates so as to assign proportionally those who will take aviation courses at Hampton Roads, San Diego and Pensacola, consideration will be given to the class standing and the athletic ability of the ensigns. The latter qualification is relative to the necessity of securing coaches for athletic sports.

The complete list of nominations assigning officers to ships and classes will probably be completed in the next two weeks, as the Bureau of Navigation has asked that it be submitted by the fifteenth of April.

Capt. Farenholt Selected

PRESIDENT HOOVER this week approved the selection of Capt. Ammen Farenholt, MC, USN, for promotion to the rank of rear admiral. Capt. Farenholt will succeed Rear Adm. Albert M. D. McCormick, MC, who reached the statutory retiring age on Thursday.

Capt. Farenholt was commissioned an assistant surgeon in the Medical Corps of the Navy on May 29, 1894, following his graduation from the Harvard Medical School the previous year. He is a native of Virginia, having been born in Norfolk on December 9, 1871. Promoted to passed assistant surgeon in 1897, he was commissioned as surgeon six years later, and as commander, August 29, 1917. Six weeks after his promotion to the rank of commander he was commissioned in his present rank.

During the World War, Capt. Farenholt served as senior medical officer of the Naval Training Camp, San Diego, and later in command of the Naval Hospital at Mare Island, Calif. He has had command of several of the larger Naval hospitals and from June, 1921, to September, 1921, was the senior medical officer on board the Hospital Ship USS Mercy.

He is at present in command of the U. S. Naval Hospital at Mare Island, Calif.

N. O. Sights Planet

PHOTOGRAPHS of the newly discovered planet were taken last week at the Naval Observatory, Capt. C. F. Freeman, USN, superintendent of the Observatory, announced recently.

On the night of the 19th of March the new body first seen this month by Prof. Percival Lowell, appeared on a photographic plate that had been exposed for three hours in a camera mounted on the 10-inch telescope.

The equipment at the Naval Observatory is of too antiquated a character to be of much use in keeping the newly discovered planet under continuous observation, he said, but with especially clear weather, it may be possible to occasionally sight it with the largest telescope they possess, and then only as a pinprick of light.

"Minerva," one of the names frequently suggested as a designation for Prof. Lowell's planet is favored by Capt. Freeman, in entering in the controversy over what name to attach to the new world. Prof. Lowell would, without doubt, Capt. Freeman declares, vigorously oppose naming the planet after himself.

Naval Reserve Notes

CANDIDATES for naval reserve aviation training will be selected from the southern States making up the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Naval Districts this year in addition to those in other parts of the country the Bureau of Navigation announces. Last year none from these districts were given training.

A recent circular was issued from the Bureau for the information of applicants for naval reserve aviation training, giving requirements for admission to the training course. Graduates of Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Units will be given priority in selection, the circular states. Following these candidates, graduates of universities and colleges who have satisfactorily completed the course in Naval Reserve Aviation conducted by the Department of Naval Science and Tactics of the institution will be given preference in selection.

Engineering graduates of universities and colleges who have satisfactorily completed an Aviation Ground School Course approved by the Bureau of Navigation are next on the priority list. College graduates with the required mathematical education, certified by the Registrar of the university or college of which they have been graduated are listed last of the Bureau's list.

The Naval Reserve Inspection Board will conduct an inspection of Naval Reserve units in the following cities: Detroit, Mich., March 31; Saginaw, Mich., April 1; Grand Rapids, Mich., April 2; Benton Harbor, Mich., April 3.

The Board that will make this trip will be composed of Capt. C. A. Blakely, USN, and Comdr. C. C. Slayton, USN, from the Navy Department, and Capt. David W. Bagley, USN, attached to Headquarters, Ninth Naval District.

The following commissions have been issued to U. S. Naval Reserve officers: John Henry Bennett, Ens. C-V(S), New York, N. Y.; Louis Walter Hickey, Lt. CEC-V(S), Dallas, Tex.; David Hobbs McIntyre, Ens. C-V(S), New York, N. Y.; Harold R. McKeen, Lt. Comdr. MC-V(S), Denver, Colo.; Allen Rennie Muncey, Ens. Piers For Pearl Harbor

THE Bureau of Yards and Docks has awarded a contract for improvements to piers, quays and bulkhead at the Naval Operating Base, Pearl Harbor, T. H., to the Hawaiian Dredging Company, Limited, of Honolulu, for $396,038. Time 720 days.

Change Pennants

CHANGES in dimensions of pennants have been made by the Division of Naval Communications, it was announced this week. They are incorporated in the new Visual Manual to be issued in the near future.

The new manual will include thirteen flag dimension plates for reference in making flags aboard ship. The numeral pennants, and the course, deploy, formation and turn pennants have been redesigned with a shorter fly for convenience in handling. In most cases interior dimensions have not been changed.

When the Visual Manual is placed in effect, present stock of the above pennants should be altered by cutting off the fly to the total length as shown in the plates. The cut should, in all cases, be square across the pennant and not rounded, as the present numeral pennants are. New pennants, when made, should conform to all dimensions given in the plates.

Detailed drawings and instructions are also included in the new Visual Manual to aid in the manufacture on board ship of the Navy Guidon. The Guidon has been designed so that a ship's landing force parading ashore may carry a flag upon which the name of the ship appears.

Asks Strict SOS Watch

CAPT. S. C. HOOPER, USN, Director of Naval Communications, in a bulletin issued from his office warns communication personnel of the Navy of the importance of maintaining constantly a careful watch on 500 kilocycles, the international calling and distress frequency.

"Day after day nothing of much interest may be heard on this circuit," Capt. Hooper states, "Then something vital occurs—an emergency involving the safety of human lives and ships. The 500 kcs. guardship must be ready to act quickly and efficiently."

To Study Eclipse

TWO airplanes from the San Diego Naval Air Station are to be used in connection with the observation of the eclipse of the sun on April 28.

Capt. C. F. Freeman, superintendent of the Naval Observatory, recently asked for the use of the planes and two will be sent to Honey Lake, California, which is in the path of totality. Mrs. Isabel M. Lewis, astronomer of the Naval Observatory, will study the phenomenon, and supervise the taking of the photographs.

THE movement duly inaugurated last year by the Army-Navy-Marine Corps Association, of Los Angeles, Calif., Col. A. J. Copp, Jr., president, and Lt. Comdr. M. S. Tisdale, USN, secretary, per its Special Committee, Col. Arthur Williams, USA, ret., and Maj. J. E. Bloom, USA, ret., is about to meet with success.

Representative Royal C. Johnson, M. C., chairman, House Committee on World War Veterans Legislation, writes Maj. Bloom:

"Yesterday a rough draft of a bill to amend the World War Veterans Act was presented to this committee (including amendments as follows.)

"For the purpose of this section, the Spanish American War shall be construed to mean service between April 21, 1898, and July 4, 1902, and the term 'Veteran' shall be deemed to include those persons retired or otherwise not dishonorably separated from the active list of the Army or Navy.

"The section referred to above is the Section of the present law regarding hospitalization of veterans. The Committee will report out this Bill in the very near future and I hope to get it passed by the House within the next week.

1st Div. Greets Wells

ROARING cannon resounded over lower Manhattan and Brooklyn and Army troops paraded at Governors Island and Ft. Hamilton as Maj. Gen. Briant H. Wells, until recently Deputy Chief of Staff, USA, assumed command of the 1st Division, succeeding Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, elevated to the post of Inspector General.

Colorful and imposing military ceremonies marked Gen. Wells' arrival at 1st Division headquarters, Ft. Hamilton, at 9:30 A. M. Greeted by the thunder of 13 saluting guns, the new Division commander was met by Brig. Gen. Otho Rosenbloom, 1st Brigade; Col. William B. Graham, 18th Inf.; Col. Albert S. Williams, 16th Inf., and Col. Adolphe A. Huguet, Special Troops, the commanding officers of the Divisional components garrisoned in the metropolitan area.

As he entered the reservation Gen. Wells was received by an escort of honor, including Company A, 18th Inf.; the regimental band, and colors of the 16th and 18th Infantry. Later 800 troops of the 18th Infantry passed in review before him on the parade ground.

From Ft. Hamilton Gen. Wells went to Governors Island to report to Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander of the 2nd Corps Area. Guns of Ft. Jay barked in salute as he set foot on the Island and an impressive array of 16th Infantry troops formed an escort at the dock. Gen. Ely and staff officers received the new Division commander at Corps Area headquarters.

Chamber Fetes Officers

Omaha (Special).—The Omaha Chamber of Commerce recently rendered a luncheon to 70 officers of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, at which Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commanding the 7th Corps Area, Brig. Gen. LeRoy Eltinge, of Ft. Omaha, and Col. C. A. Trott, Ft. Crook, were principal speakers.

Maj. Gen. Hagood thanked the city and the chamber of commerce for their co-operation in military pursuits. Gen. Eltinge declared that it is the conflict of ideas—not men—that makes war.

"We may get so enthusiastic about peace that we'll be willing to fight for it. Witness a war to end war! So keep the Army posted on your emotional jags."

Col. Trott, who has been active in the summer encampments at Ft. Crook, thanked the chamber for its cooperation and financial assistance in holding the camps.

Disfavors Bill

SECRETARY HURLEY is opposed to the awarding of Army service medals to members of the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army and similar organizations who served during the World War in France. In his letter to the Military Affairs of the House, Mr. Hurley points out that by the Interallied Agreement of March 1919, the United States concurred to reserving of the Victory Medal, the service medal for the World War, to actual combatants. While realizing the value of the services of the persons in whose interest H. R. 9797 is drawn, the Secretary states that he believes the service medal should only be granted to actual combatants.

See Economies In Unity

AN annual saving of more than $14,500,000 to the Government would be effected by the enactment of H. R. 10630, authorizing consolidation of governmental agencies affecting war veterans into a single "administration of veterans' affairs," according to a report filed with the House March 21 by the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments.

Retained in commissioned status as Executive Officer, Recruiting Publicity Bureau, until Sept. 30, 1920, Sgt. Lowenthal found upon discharge that the time limit for filing applications for the warrant officer grade had expired, although otherwise he was eligible.

During his 25 years of Army service, Sgt. Lowenthal has served in the Philippines and at numerous posts along the Mexican Border and elsewhere throughout the United States.

Sell War Reserve Stock

ADRAFT of a bill was forwarded to Congress this week by the War Department to authorize the sale of surplus war reserve stock, and the purchase of additional war reserve stock with the proceeds of the sale to reduce the deficit in other reserve stock.

In 1927, a study was made by the Army to determine the amount of war reserve stock on hand, basing their estimates on two Field Armies, making up 1,000,000 men, and the condition which the present bill seeks to remedy was discovered. It is not planned to dispose of any Ordnance material as it believed that a surplus material to outfit from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 men is needed. The bill was introduced in both the Senate and the House and has been designated, S. 3927, and H. R. 10814.

Vets Aid CMTC Procurement

New York (Special).—Completion of the quota for the Field Artillery encampment at Madison Barracks—the third Citizens' Military Training Camp filled since enrollment began here March 1—was announced by Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding the 2nd Corps Area.

More than 4,000 volunteers have already registered for the eighth CMTC camps which will be conducted under Gen. Ely's supervision during July and August. Vacancies remaining for the encampments still open for enrollment number less than 1,000. These are available to young men who are residents of New York State, New Jersey, or Delaware.

Cooperation of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars in selecting outstanding youths in all communities of these three States to attend the CMTC camps has been offered to Gen. Ely, it was announced. Under a plan adopted, every Legion post will send at least one boy to camp as its representative and Legion officials will assist county chairmen of the CMTC enrollment organization in interesting school authorities, civic bodies and large employers.

Gen. Everson Will Speak

MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM G. EVERSON, C. of M. Bu., will be in Boston April 5 to address the annual dinner of the Norwich Club of that city. This club is composed of the alumni of Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., which has always emphasized military training for its students and as a result holds a high place in the military annals of the United States.

From Boston Gen. Everson will go to Cleveland by rail and from there by airplane to Louisville, where he will at the request of the Secretary of War, address the Defense Dinner to be held in that city on April 7, returning to Washington by airplane. The Defense Dinner is an annual affair held by the officers of the Regular Army, National Guard and Reserve Corps living in Louisville and vicinity in the interest of adequate National Defense and to make the officers of the various components of Army of the United States better acquainted with each other. Last year the Secretary of War attended the dinner and made the principal address.

Medals To CMTC Again

BRONZE medals for "Excellence," to be awarded to the outstanding men in each of the Citizens' Military Training Camps, have again been offered by the CMTC Association and accepted by the War Department.

REGIONAL SHOOTING PLANNED

Iowa City (Special).—A regional shoulder-to-shoulder small bore inter-collegiate rifle match will be fired on the gallery of the University of Iowa on April 5. Individual and special team matches are also planned. The meet is under the auspices of the National Rifle Association.

National Guard Notes

Camp Murray, Wash. (Special).—The 161st Motor Transport Company is announced as winner of the small bore rifle competition fired by the Washington National Guard in January. The winning team scored 3475. Company E, 161st Inf., scored 3469 to take second place, and Company I of 3312. Sixteen teams competed.

2nd Lt. Roy E. Meister, 146th FA, won the gold medal for high individual score of 592. Pvt. H. T. Gilmore, 161st M. T. Co. and 1st Lt. C. E. Long, 161st Inf., both scored 590, the former winning a silver, the latter a bronze medal therefor.

Inasmuch as promotion of National Guard personnel authorized to attend Army schools after estimates have been made of the cost of attendance in certain grades, might seriously embarrass the Militia Bureau by resulting in an overdraft of funds at the end of the fiscal year, it is requested that State authorities cooperate by taking necessary steps to prevent the promotion of enlisted men now at schools.

In the case of student officers it is desired that prospective promotions that would normally take place be reported to the Militia Bureau.

Hereafter no change in the grade of an enlisted Washington NG man whose detail to a service school has been requested will be made without specific authority from the State AG, the Governor of Washington has directed.

Tallahassee, Fla. (Special).—An opinion of the attorney general of Florida gives ground for the belief that the National Guard of this State may be called out to enforce the fruit fly quarantine. The Federal and State quarantine regulations in this matter interlock, it is held, and the authority of the military forces extend to violations.

Hear Of War Experiences

Ft. Benning (Special).—Various operations of the World War will be the topic of discussion by eight officers of the advanced class who will address the students of the Regular and National Guard and Reserve company officers' classes next week.

This series of monographs will begin on Thursday morning at ten o'clock when Maj. Manton S. Eddy will relate his personal experiences with the Machine Gun Company, 39th Inf., 4th Div., in the Aisne-Marne offensive from July 18 to Aug. 5, 1918. Capt. Hurley E. Fuller will be the next speaker, and will discuss the operations of the 3rd Battalion, 47th Inf., 4th Div., on the Vesle river, which he observed from Aug. 5th to 12th, 1918.

Maj. Geo. S. Clarke has selected as his topic the Mesopotamia Campaign from Aug. 1st, 1914, to the end of the war. Capt. Nathaniel E. Callen then will relate his experience with the 3rd Battalion, 117th Inf., 30th Div., in the British offensive, toward Maubeuge, Oct. 5th to 8th, 1918.

On Saturday morning Capt. John W. Rodman will discuss the operations of the 1st Division in the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne Oct. 4th to 31st, 1918. Maj. Hardin C. Sweeney will then tell of his observations of the part which Company C, 9th Machine Gun Bat., 3rd Div., played in the operations in the vicinity of Cunel in the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Oct. 7th to 11th, 1918. Capt. William C. McMahon, the next speaker, will discuss the operations of the 1st Army in the third phase of the Meuse-Argonne, Nov. 1st to 11th, 1918. Maj. Alexander M. Weyand will close Saturday's speaking program with an account of his personal experience during the capture of Hill 310, south of Rembertcourt in the Woivre, by the 2nd Battalion, 34th Inf., 7th Div., on Nov. 1st and 2nd, 1918.

Fills CMT Quota

POPULARITY of the CMTC in the 4th Corps Area is attested by a report from its commanding general, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, with headquarters at Atlanta, which states that the enrollment objective for this Corps Area had been reached on March 15. The enrollment campaign started on March 1. This, according to War Department Records, is the first Corps Area to fill its quota.

in civil life who at one time has been in the military service, and who is subject to call or recall in the military service by reason of definite connection with the military establishment, would be to render ineligible not only retired officers but possibly reserve officers.

"Seventh—Retired officers who have ceased to engage in military service and have entered civil life and civil pursuits, and are not subject to call into the military service in time of peace except with their consent, are in civil life within the meaning of the District act and eligible to appointment to the office of Commissioner."

Considers Reserve Officers

The memorandum discussed the status of Reserve officers as follows:

"There are thousands of officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps who now hold commissions and bear a definite relation to the military establishment. They are not only subject to call into the military service, as are retired officers, in time of war, but they are subject to being called into the military service in time of peace without their consent for limited periods, and to this extent they are more subject to military duty than are retired officers, who cannot be recalled into the service in time of peace without their consent. None will contend that Reserve officers are not in civil life because of such relation to the military establishment."

"It is true there are some other differences between them and retired officers, reserve officers only receiving compensation while in active service, and retired officers receiving what is called compensation but what is really a pension, notwithstanding they are no longer in the military service."

"Both are alike in the sense that they are engaged in civil pursuits and active in the civil life of the communities in which they live, and are not in any proper sense in military life unless brought into or recalled into the military service."

Good Engineer Sought

"In providing that one of the Commissioners shall be an Army engineer, the primary purpose was not to select an Army officer. A competent engineer was sought; his being a military officer was merely incidental. The selection of an officer from the Corps of Engineers made it likely that the Engineer Commissioner would be a man not a resident of the District and without much knowledge of the community or local conditions. So, to provide that knowledge, it was specified that the other two Commissioners must have been residents of the District for three years. The choice is to be of two men identified with the community, as distinguished from the Engineer Commissioner, who may never have been so identified. The statute did not provide that the two Commissioners must have been three years in civil life, but only that they shall have resided here three years, and it took for granted that they shall be in civil life at the time of their appointment, that is, not then engaged in military pursuits, because, by other statutes, officers actively engaged in military life were disqualified. The length of time a retired officer resident in the District shall have been engaged in civil pursuits does not affect his eligibility. It only bears on his personal qualifications, which are matters of discretion and judgment for the appointing power and the Senate to consider in each case."

"By an act of May 12, 1917 (United States code title 10, section 371), it was provided:

"All officers and employees of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, who shall be members of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall be entitled to leave of absence from their respective duties, without loss of pay, time, or efficiency rating, on all days during which they shall be ordered to duty with troops or at field exercises, or for instruction, for periods not to exceed 15 days in any one calendar year."

Reserves in "Civil Life"

"This seems to recognize that Reserve officers are in civil life and not ineligible to the office of Commissioner of the District."

"In People vs. Duane, 121 N. Y., 367, the question was whether, under a State statute, a retired Army officer of the United States could hold a civil office. The court analyzes at length the status of retired officers and holds that while in retirement they are, in fact, pensioners, and exercise no functions of a military office."

ADM. HUGHES BACK ON DUTY, LEAVES ON INSPECTION TOUR

ADM. CHARLES F. HUGHES officially returned to duty this week, following his recent illness and immediately left on an inspection tour of the south and west coast.

Leaving Washington Thursday, he embarked on the USS Pensacola at Hampton Roads, which is starting on her shake-down cruise. At Key West, Adm. Hughes will inspect the Naval Station and then proceed to Pensacola. After leaving Florida, he will visit New Orleans, and then to San Diego, San Pedro, San Francisco, Mare Island and Bremerton, returning to Washington.

NON-GRADUATES TO ATTEND N. A. GRADUATES' DINNER

THE annual meeting of the Naval Academy Graduates Association will be held in Annapolis on May 31, it was announced this week. Former students of the Academy will be invited this year at what is expected to be the largest meeting of the Association ever held. Lt. Comdr. R. S. Robertson, jr., USN, ret., secretary of the Association, stated that as this is the first time non-graduates have been invited, it is desired that a large number of them attend. A luncheon is being arranged for ladies and guests, and the banquet will be held in the evening, with six speeches to be scheduled. The after dinner talks will be limited to five minutes each, and the dinner is to end at 10:30 p. m.

650 OFFICERS AND MARINES COMING HOME FROM NICARAGUA

FIFTY officers and 600 enlisted men of the Marine Corps on duty with the Second Brigade in Nicaragua are to be brought home as soon as transportation can bring them. Men with the longest service in Nicaragua are to be selected from the various units, cutting down the size of each detachment.

No transports are to be sent, and the entire arrangements of sending the officers and men back to the States is in the hands of the Commander-in-Chief of the Special Service Squadrons, Rear Adm. E. H. Campbell. Approximately 450 of those coming out will be taken to the East Coast of the United States and the remainder to the West Coast. Accommodations will be available on the USS Texas which will visit Nicaragua, the USS Vega, which is in Caribbean waters, and entire Special Service Squadrons, which Adm. Campbell has been authorized to use as he sees fit in arranging the transportation.

The withdrawal will bring home over one-third of the officers and enlisted men now in Nicaragua. There will be left 50 officers and 701 enlisted men, exclusive of 15 officers and 185 men on aviation duty, none of whom are being removed. The size of the Garde Nacional is not being reduced though some of the men of long service will probably be sent home with others taking their places.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE PERSONNEL BILL UP

THE Public Health Service Bill, H. R. 8807, relating to promotion, personnel, and activities of the Public Health Service received the official sanction of the House of Representatives this week when it was passed by that body on March 26.

Under the provisions of one section of this bill those officers who are on civil service status may be transferred to the regular corps after examination and with regard to present salaries. Another section of this bill provides for the promotion of officers according to the same length of service as officers in corresponding grades of the Medical Corps of the Army. The pay of the surgeon general is increased under the terms of this bill, giving him the pay and allowances of a major general of the Army, the same as the surgeon general of the Army receives, instead of that of a brigadier general, which he now receives. This would increase his present salary, including pay and allowances, by $2,200 per year, or $9,700.

The President is authorized to appoint not to exceed a total of 55 medical, dental, sanitary, engineer and pharmacist officers in the Public Health Service, to be under the grade of medical director. He is also given authority to appoint four officers in grade above that of surgeon.

C. G. COMMANDANT SALARY BILL PASSES HOUSE

THE Commandant of the Coast Guard is given the same pay and allowances as are now prescribed for chiefs of bureaus of the Navy Departments, under the authority of a bill, H. R. 8637, which passed the House of Representatives this week. The maximum increase in salary is $2,200, Representative Roch explained when this bill came up for consideration.

Representative Stafford made the statement that he had objected to this bill when it was called up on the Consent Calendar. He also said that he did not intend to object to it if the bill had been reached again on the Consent Calendar, "not because of the tremendous influence which has been brought to bear by the Coast Guard Service to have me recede from my position." In continuing he said, "They importuned influential business men of my city to have them ask me to withdraw my opposition to the bill. The tactics which have been indulged in by the Coast Guard Service show the extreme to which they will go in trying to have a man recede from an honest position in opposition to the passage of a bill."

"WE'LL NEVER GO THERE ANY MORE," CHANT RECRUITING SGTS. "AS unnatural as a Bowery without 'Men Wanted for the U. S. Army' signs." Once that might have been a perfectly good simile, but that time is gone forever.

Army recruiting sergeants, long a familiar sight around the missions and labor agencies, folded up their signboards and hauled down their "Army Builds Men" flags this week, quitting the Bowery cold.

"And forever," added Maj. C. A. Pivrotto, New York City chief of Army recruiting. "Park Avenue is more suited for recruiting than the Bowery nowadays. Unskilled laborers don't make the kind of soldiers the Army wants. The Bowery is through as a feeder for the present-day Regular Army."

opinion it was argued that being in civil life is not specifically enumerated as a qualification in the organic act.

"If Congress had intended by this statute," the summary stated, "to create, as a new test of eligibility, activity in civil life, it would have said, 'The other two commissioners shall be appointed from civil life and—' etc. Congress took it for granted that the two other than the Engineer Commissioner would be from civil life, and the phrase 'the two appointed from civil life' was merely a convenient way of referring to these two Commissioners. Congress, in thus assuming that the two would be appointed from civil life, must have assumed that there was some other statute requiring it. Under other laws, then and since in force, retired officers were eligible to civil posts, including the office of District Commissioner, but active officers were not. The only other statute requiring that the two Commissioners should be from civil life was one disqualifying active officers and providing for forfeiture of their commission if they accepted civil posts."

The summary said it had been the uniform policy of Congress to treat retired officers as eligible and to make available for public service the ability and experience of such men, it being only required that if their retirement pay exceeds $2,500 the office must be an elective one or one appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

It also is contended in the memorandum that "the decisions which have held that retired officers are part of the military establishment within the meaning of statutes providing for increase in pay and other matters, have no controlling bearing here. The phrase 'in civil life' was not involved in any of them and is here to be construed in the sense which it was used in this particular statute."

Another contention advanced was that if it had been intended to disqualify men with extended previous military service, on the theory that they would have a military point of view, it would have been necessary to adopt provisions disqualifying officers of the Regular Army who have resigned, and others admittedly in civil life, but with extended military experience. The memorandum argued that that was not attempted.

Plan Military Parks

HEARINGS on a bill to provide for a system of military parks and monuments at a cost of $30,000,000, involving memorialization of 1,000 forts and battle sites, were conducted March 21 by the House Committee on Military Affairs.

Lt. Col. H. L. Landers, of the historical section of the Army War College, submitted the results of a survey which he had made for the War Department, covering about 2,000 historical sites for which memorials had been proposed. He considered about 1,000 of them to be of sufficient importance to be included in the plan.

ONE SAFETY PLAN RETAINED

Out of approximately 5,000 ideas or suggestions for submarine safety submitted to the Navy Department only one has been retained. A total of 8,034 letters were received, containing actually 4,971 suggestions, from civilians.

The one plan which is being considered was submitted by John F. O'Rourke of New York City, a tunnel and subway engineer. This is an idea for an escape chamber, which has been subjected to various tests, but is largely along the lines of diving bells developed within the Navy.

MC Exams. in June

EXAMINATION of applicants for appointment as first lieutenants, Medical Corps, Regular Army, will be held in the period from June 23 to 27.

SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1930

"Continued efficiency of the military service requires that it attract and retain men of ability and high professional attainments. Dollars count and Uncle Sam can afford to pay adequate salaries."—NEW YORK AMERICAN

WE are glad to advise our readers that the United States Chamber of Commerce plans to consider the desirability of adopting a resolution in support of the recommendations of the Interdepartmental Pay Board. Thus this great national business organization will discharge a duty of high importance not only to the services but to the government and itself. Business knows the value of National Defense; its very life depends upon the protection which armed strength supplies. The President and the Congress realize that the recommendations of the National Chamber are not only reflective of the views of its members chambers but of the able men who compose its National Council. These recommendations always are based upon a thorough and analytical study of the questions to which they refer. Confident of the results of an investigation made by any fair minded body into service pay, we are certain the National Chamber will take favorable action.

THE United States Chamber is used to figures that seem big, so that it will not hesitate to advocate appropriations, whatever their size, essential to meet a gripping need. The country knows that as a result of the way in which the members of the armed forces have been treated, a substantial advance in pay appropriations must be made. We do not know how much additional money will be required if the recommendations of the Interdepartmental Pay Board shall be adopted. We have been told the total increase will be around eighty million dollars. It may be less. But even such a grant will only give delayed justice to men who have been living under distressing conditions for years. Those conditions, as public opinion has emphatically declared, must not be allowed to continue.

WHILE Congress is haggling over the appropriations for National Defense, see what patriotic citizens in different parts of the country are doing. In Chicago, the citizenry, as represented by the Junior Association of the Chamber of Commerce, is seeking to raise the morale of the National Guard units of the city. It has created the Chicago National Guard Commission, and firms and individuals have contributed fifty thousand dollars to defray its expenses. Among the contributors are such organizations as:

International Harvester Company.....	$3,000
Peabody Coal Company.....	2,000
Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company.....	1,500
Illinois Central Railroad, Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, Sears Roebuck & Company, Santa Fe system, Armour & Company, Swift & Company, Montgomery Ward & Company, Chicago Board of Underwriters.....	1,000
Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Company, Middlewest Utilities Company, Chicago Rapid Transit Company, Commonwealth Edison Company, Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad Company, American Steel Foundry.....	800
First National Bank of Chicago.....	600
Central Trust Company of Illinois, Chicago Title and Trust Company, Wilson & Company, Chicago and Great Western Railroad, Union Stockyards Transit Company, Crerar-Clinch Coal Company.....	1,000

The business men who are directors of the above and other concerns all appreciate the value of proper defense. Congress could do no better than to observe the policy of the men who help to elect it and provide for efficiency and effectiveness by adequate appropriations.

THE voluntary retirement of Maj. Gen. Clarence C. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, furnishes us with an opportunity to speak our mind regarding this distinguished officer. We have known him for years; we have watched his constant, steady promotion, the ability he has displayed in handling the various important assignments given him, and finally the great executive capacity he has shown in the office, which, of his own will, he is about to relinquish. We regret Gen. Williams' retirement, because the Army will lose his initiative, intelligence, and constructive power, but we may add that he has set an example which is well worthy of emulation by those who will succeed him.

SURELY, the people of the United States will not permit their representatives to enter into the so-called "consultative" pact. Such a pact, it is stated, will be preliminary to an agreement regarding the Mediterranean to be signed by Great Britain, France and Italy, and consequently be hooked up with that agreement. It is vehemently denied that such a "consultative" pact will bind the United States or use moral or military persuasion or force in connection with any Mediterranean or other European question that may arise. If so, then why do we enter into it? Is the United States to sign words that mean nothing? Won't the co-signatories take a different view, and in the future when a question, of purely European concern, develops, won't they insist that the United States participate in their discussion, help in defining a course of action, and, of course, participate in following that course through? It seems to us the mere statement of the matter is in violation of that wise advice of George Washington to avoid entanglement in the affairs of Europe.

We thought the London Disarmament Conference was to deal entirely with the size of navies. Now we know that it is mixed up with politics, and politics which are dangerous to America's freedom of action.

THE Association of Military Colleges and Schools in the United States has been holding its annual session in Washington. On another page will be found an extended report of the sessions of this Association. It is refreshing to find within our boundaries, institutions with the courage to stand up for one of the fundamental principles of governmental existence—preparation of the young for one of the duties of citizenship, the nation's defense. To each member of the Association, we extend our congratulations and appreciation for the fine, patriotic work they are doing. They are a strong counterbalance to the dangerous effort of pacifists to make the country a prey for any people desirous of helping themselves to our wealth.

A certain yeoman on the West Coast received the following letter from a man's mother:

"Your letter, stating that my son has deserted from the Navy, has just come. You failed to give his address. Please furnish me with his address immediately."

His answer ran:

"Dear Madam:

"Men deserting from the Navy are not in the habit of leaving their addresses. If you address a letter to your son in care of the Naval Prison, Mare Island, Calif., marked 'to be held until called for,' I feel sure that it will eventually reach him."

An intoxicated citizen was having his own troubles with a revolving door. Every time he staggered into it, he was taken right around and deposited on the pavement again. As he stood gazing ruefully at the stubborn door, a young man came along and went in. The door went around and a young lady came out.

D. O.—Ft. Clark, Tex., is on a mesa overlooking Brackettville, Kinney Co., Tex., a town of 1,000 Mexicans, Seminoles and Americans, in a county of 6,000 population.

Del Rio is 35 miles west of Ft. Clark. Spofford Junction (10 miles), the nearest station to Ft. Clark. Automobiles are not essential. There is an excellent post commissary and post exchange. The 1st Cav., Brig., less the 1st Cav., with QM, Hosp., and small SC, O and AC, detachments are stationed at Ft. Clark. Wool is worn during the mild winters. Episcopal, Methodist and Catholic churches are in Brackettville and a chaplain at the post. Post children attend school there, via local school bus. Colored servants cost $25 per month up. There are 27 stone and 16 wooden bungalow type sets of married officers' quarters, all modernized. Enlisted quarters are wood war-time buildings. Officers and enlisted men are classified for preference as to quarters. Mounted sports predominate, with hunting and fishing abundant. The Ft. Clark race track is considered the best in the State.

A movement is in progress at Washington for the removal of the Naval Academy from Annapolis to New London. The New London people are determined to have something from the Government, and if they cannot get a Navy Yard they will take the Naval Academy. Representatives Starkweather, Strong and Kellogg are doing their utmost to secure either the Navy Yard or the Academy.

Golf Course Improved

GOLFERS who have hesitated to brave the winter weather to traverse the course of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club in Arlington County will find that Maj. R. D. Newman, manager, has accomplished many improvements during the inactive season.

Completing the original construction plan, the club has recently finished putting in back tees on Nos. 4, 5 and 13.

The hill on No. 7 has been cut down and the tee on that hole built up and enlarged so as to make it an open one-shot hole. No. 14 has been lengthened and the green placed behind a stream, a large water hazard being constructed in front of it.

All of the sodding has been completed on the tees, greens and aprons and 500 trees have been planted throughout the course, near the greens and tees and about the club house. The parking space at the club house has been enlarged to accommodate 500 cars.

The horse show grounds in the vicinity of the club house have been laid out and seeded and additional facilities have been installed in the historic picnic grounds. Construction has been begun on six additional tennis courts and both approaches to the club house have been resurfaced. Another improvement is an addition to the caddy house to provide quarters for the caddy master.

The course being crowded over weekends this early in the season, nine new holes have been laid out but construction has not yet commenced.

Completing the most active and successful year of its existence, the club entertainment and dining facilities have been and are now taxed to capacity.

SERVICE SPORTS

ANNOUNCE LACROSSE DATES

West Point (Special).—With a schedule of 11 games, including one double-header, an international game, and four games to be played in eight days, the Army lacrosse team will have a busy season, according to Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics.

The double-header will be played on April 12, the first game against Hobart College at 2 p. m., and the second against the strong Oxford-Cambridge team at 4 p. m. It is believed that several Rhodes scholars are included in the English line-up.

F. Morris Touchtone, head lacrosse coach, has a number of letter men from last year's strong team which only lost two games in the entire season. The team will have two captains, R. J. O'Keefe taking charge while on the offense and Eugene A. Kenny, the defense. Other letter men are King, who will resume his old position of midfield attack; McBride, who has been shifted from midfield attack to inside attack; and Zimmerman, who will again play the defense.

Fifteen football men are on Touchtone's squad, including ten regulars and five scrubs. O'Keefe and Kenny, the co-captains, were on Capt. "Biff" Jones' A squad, as well as Carver, Hill-singer, Miller, Fletcher, Maxwell, Gordon, Gibner and Freeman. Maj. Ralph Sasse, new football coach, is a firm believer in lacrosse being an excellent spring game for football aspirants.

The complete varsity and plebe schedule is:

Varsity

Apr. 5, Springfield College; Apr. 9, N. Y. U.; Apr. 12, Hobart College and Oxford-Cambridge; Apr. 19, Lafayette; Apr. 26, U. of Maryland (at College Park).

May 3, Johns Hopkins (at Baltimore); May 10, Swarthmore; May 17, Colgate; May 24, Penn State; May 30, St. Johns College.

Plebe

Apr. 26, Erasmus Hall H. S.
May 24, Peekskill Mil. Acad.

FOREGO SPRING GRID TRAINING

West Point (Special).—With 81 members of last year's plebe and varsity football squads competing for places on Military Academy baseball, track, lacrosse, tennis and fencing teams, Maj. Ralph Sasse, head coach, decided not to attempt holding Spring practice. None of these football men will be available until after May 31st when the Spring athletic schedules will be completed and graduation exercises will be held on June 12th. Practice may be held between these dates.

First string players of last year's team who will be available for football this Autumn and are on Spring athletic squads include Humber, captain-elect of the 1930 team, who is out for baseball, together with Lazar, Bowman and Parham. The lacrosse squad includes Carver, Hillsinger, Miller, Timberlake, Fletcher and Gordon, while Messinger, Price, Glattly, Trice and Stecker are out for track. A large number of men on last year's scrub team who may develop into varsity material this Fall are also on various squads.

The strong plebe team has 36 members out of 41 who played last season, out for places on Spring plebe teams. While track and baseball have attracted many of these cadets, the majority are contending for places on the plebe lacrosse team. Included in this group are Letzelter, Fields, Quinn, MacWilliams, Summerfelt, Elliott, Frentzel, and Herb.

In commenting on athletics at the Military Academy, Maj. P. B. Fleming said that 419 cadets out of a total strength of 1,203 are members of ten athletic squads now either competing in intercollegiate sports or in training. The balance of the Corps of Cadets have an intensive six weeks' course of intramural athletics ahead of them.

FORM POST LEAGUE

Ft. Barrancas (Special).—An inter-battery baseball league has been formed in the 13th Coast Artillery.

Games will be played Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, with the object of selecting a post team from the best of the entire league. All play will begin at 2 p. m. and games will last seven innings, except the final game April 19, which will go nine.

USMC DIAMOND MENU OUT.

Quantico, Va. (Special).—The Marine Corps baseball team began the baseball schedule here on March 24. Thirty-eight games have been booked on an all-collegiate schedule.

The 5-4 defeat by Drexel Institute in the opener therefore has a formidable set of inspiring statistics to offset in order to dampen USMC baseball spirits.

Today and on Monday U. of Vermont will be the Marine's opponent.

Year after year the Marines have been highly successful in baseball. Since 1924 their record shows a total of 134 wins against 33 defeats. In 1928 they won 17 games without a defeat, and last year won 23 out of 29.

Following is the schedule for the Marines' home games:

April 3—Villanova; 4—Dartmouth; 5—Yale; 7—Lafayette; 9—Harvard; 12—Juniata; 16 and 17—Susquehanna; 18 and 19—N. Y. U.; 21—Boston College; 22 and 23—Manhattan College; 24—St. Bonaventure College; 26—U. of Delaware; 28—Catholic University (in Quantico).

May 3—McKinley Tech. H. S.; 6 and 7—Temple U.; 8—Gettysburg College; 9—Wake Forest College; 13—V. M. I.; 14—Catholic University (in Washington); 16 and 17—Washington College.

The schedule for the New England trip, during which the Marines will be based at Boston, is:

May 24—U. of Vermont at Boston; 26—Norwich U. at Northfield, Vt.; 27—Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.; 28—Holy Cross at Worcester; 30—Providence College at Providence.

June 4—New Hampshire at Durham; 7—Tufts College at Medford; 11—Harvard at Cambridge; 13—Coast Guard at New London.

PLAN OGLETHORPE HORSE SHOW

Ft. Oglethorpe (Special).—Lovers of horses in Tennessee and northern Georgia are displaying great interest in the coming horse show to be held here on April 4th and 5th.

Col. E. H. Humphrey, 6th Cavalry, states that the officers and soldiers of his command are spending every hour which can be spared from their military duties in preparing to make this the best event of its kind ever held at that post, and the ladies and children of the post are as much interested as the men, as classes are to be held for everyone.

The horse show committee consists of Col. Humphrey, Lt. Col. H. T. Bull, Maj. Arthur E. Wilbourn, Capt. Wilkie C. Burt, and Capt. George P. Cummings. They have provided most attractive silver cups for most of the events and cash prizes for others. The committee is lending every effort to care for the animals of visiting exhibitors and to assure all spectators the best possible view of the show.

The beautiful parade ground, situated on the edge of historic Chickamauga Park, makes an ideal setting for the event.

Aside from classes for standard gaited saddle and driving horses, hunters and jumpers, there will be classes for officers' polo ponies, officers' chargers, children between the ages of eight and 14, and several novelty events in which only enlisted men will participate.

Entries must be in the office of the secretary by noon, March 26.

WARREN HORSE SHOW RESULTS

Ft. Francis E. Warren (Special).—The enlisted men's horse show drew a large turnout of both spectators and competitors.

First in the various classes were: Class 1, the musical chair race, Pvt. T. Jackson, Hq. Btry, 76th FA. Class 2, mounted wrestling, Cpl. S. Y. Simms, Co. H, 20th Inf. Class 3, the best shod horse or mule, Horseshoer E. R. Jants, Btry B, 76th FA. Class 4, the best enlisted man's mount, Sgt. E. Lerner, Btry B, 76th FA. Class 5, the equipment race, Pvt. R. Judges for the horse show were: Capt. H. L. Watson and Lts. E. E. Cox and George W. Read, Jr.

Brig. Gen. C. R. Howland, post commander, commended highly the interest taken by the men in the events.

Lts. Read and Cox were in charge of arrangements.

Ft. Slocum Sports

THE post basketball league this year consisted of six teams, one each from Companies I, K and L, 18th Inf., and the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Recruit Companies, Overseas Recruit Depot. Each team played every other team twice. Company I, 18th Inf., won 10 games and lost none and was awarded a handsome trophy.

The post bowling league comprised the same organizations with the addition of a detachment team made up of men from the DEML and Medical Detachments. Company L, 18th Inf., was high, having won six games and lost none.

The post basketball team was organized from the best players of the various company teams, I Company predominating. It has just closed a very successful season, having played eleven games, only losing one.

Teams played included Headquarters Detachment, 2nd Corps Area, Ft. Wadsworth, Ft. Totten, Ft. Hamilton and Ft. Schuyler, as well as several fast civilian teams. 2nd Lt. Madison C. Schepps, 18th Inf., acted as coach for the team and was also one of the star players.

PEABODY WINS JUMPING TEST.

Ft. Benning (Special).—Maj. Paul E. Peabody, riding Malcolm A, won the 12th weekly jumping contest for green jumpers, which was held in the new horse show ring north of the Infantry School tables. Eighteen officers and ladies were entered in the contest, which was run on a handicap basis. At the completion of the jumping course three riders were tied for first place. There were Mrs. L. A. McClure, riding Geraldine, Capt. Adrian Brian, riding Midnight, and Maj. Peabody, the latter of whom won in the jumpoff. Brig. Gen. Campbell King, commandant of the Infantry School, presented the winner with a blue ribbon and a silver pin.

The jumping course consists of four jumps; two post and rail type, one railroad gate, and one brush. The handicap of the first week of nine horses was three feet, and perfect scores in this group were made by Maj. Peabody and Capt. Brian. In the second group of five horses, jumping at three feet four inches, Mr. McClure, on Geraldine, made a perfect score. There were two entries in the three foot six-inch class and one in the three-foot-nine-inch jump, but none was able to make a perfect performance.

The new horse show ring is located in a natural amphitheater overlooking the valley of the Chattahoochee river. A portion of it, which will be used for transportation and saddle classes in future horse shows is now nearing completion.

Ready for Augusta Show

Ft. Benning (Special).—Final practice of the Infantry School riders who will represent Ft. Benning in the Augusta horse show was held March 16 under the direction of Maj. John B. Thompson, Cavalry, instructor of equitation. A practice course was set up in the new horse show ring. This was a modified olympic course which included eight-foot jumps of the brush, post and rail, triple in-and-out, post-and-rail, rail-road gate and double over types.

Sixteen jumpers and two polo ponies were shipped from the Infantry School stables on March 17. These animals are all in excellent shape as the result of conditioning for the last two months.

The members of the Infantry School team are as follows: Maj. John B. Thompson, captain; Maj. Charles B. Lyman; Capt. Pleas B. Rogers, Capt. Robert A. McClure, Capt. Adrian R. Brian, Lt. Hayden Y. Grubbs, Mrs. William M. Hoge, Mrs. Robert A. McClure, and Miss Sue Brandt.

Leave for Passover

UPON request of the Army and Navy Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board, of which Dr. Cyrus Adler is chairman, the War and Navy Departments, the Coast Guard, and the Veterans Bureau have granted furloughs to men of the Jewish faith to enable them to observe Passover.

The Secretary of War has issued an order permitting soldiers of the Jewish men in the service. The Veterans where Seder celebrations are conducted from noon, April 11, until noon, April 15.

Similar instructions have been issued by the Bureau of Navigation, granting furloughs for the same period and calling attention to the co-operation of the Jewish Welfare Board in furnishing prayer books for Seder services and unleavened bread. The Coast Guard has also issued instructions to the same effect with reference to Jewish men in the service. The Veterans Bureau will issue passes permitting patients to be at their homes, when practicable, or at places where services are held.

Study War Records

AN interesting hearing was held this week by the House Committee on Military Affairs on the Resolution introduced by Representative A. Pitts Andrew providing for the assembly, classification and publication of the World War records. Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commanding the Army War College, and Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, Deputy Chief of Staff, together with other officers were present to advise the committee just what is contemplated by the legislation and the plan under which the work is to be carried out.

Col. Samuel C. Vestal gave interesting figures on the number of pieces to be handled, there being approximately 200,000,000 documents which will have to be studied in the course of the work in order to determine which are valuable from an historical standpoint. He also told the committee that it took 600 freight cars to bring to Washington the records of the various draft boards, and these records are now stored at the Washington Barracks. The World War records of the A. E. F., and so forth, are now in a temporary building at Sixth and B Streets, Washington, and considerable discussion was had as to the fire hazard involved in the storage of these priceless records in such a building. It has developed upon investigation that this building, however, is as nearly fireproof as a temporary building can be, as it was built during the war period for the use of the Ordnance Department, with concrete walls, floors, fire doors, and the like, thus being much better suited to the purpose than is supposed when a temporary building of the usual war type is mentioned.

For several months officers at the War College have been engaged in going over these records and carding them in order that some idea may be gained as to the amount of work involved. Those testifying could give no estimate as to the possible expense, although figures were presented as to the probable number of documents that could be handled by an officer in a given time.

The Committee will hold a further hearing on the subject at which officers from the Adjutant General's Office will give the result of studies and estimates made by that office since the hearing held in 1928.

From the interest displayed by the Committee it can be presumed that legislation establishing a policy in this connection will be recommended.

AN Adjutant General's letter dated March 22 explains that while a Reserve Officer in an unassigned status is not eligible, in time of peace, for transfer to another section of the Officers' Reserve Corps, he may resign his commission at any time, and, after acceptance of resignation, may apply for a new appointment.

A Reserve Officer holding a reappointment without eligibility for assignment, active duty or promotion in peace time, is eligible for appointment in the same grade in another section of the Officers' Reserve Corps, without first resigning, providing the requirements governing transfers are met; a certificate of capacity for the grade and new section being required in each case.

LATE WAR DEPARTMENT ORDERS
The following orders were received too late for classification:

Radio Notes
FEBRUARY'S business in the Army radio net, like that of January, exceeded the business of June, ordinarily peak month, handling 33,729 messages, which would value $43,835.05 at government rates, and in which $41,597.62 was saved to the government, it was ascertained this week.

Ft. Benjamin Harrison (Special).—A new radio receiving and transmitting set is being installed here to replace an improvised set which has been in operation since fire several weeks ago partially destroyed the building used as the post radio station. The set is being installed by J. N. Craven, 5th Corps Area radio inspector.

AC Plans Photo Projects
PHOTOGRAPHIC missions will occupy an important place in the 1930 field exercises of the Air Corps next month, with Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles as the centers of activity.

Special photographic planes will be employed for observation purposes in daylight operations as well as at night. These missions will bring into play not alone standard photographic observation equipment, but also some experimental types including the Air Corps' latest device, the five-lens camera, the all-seeing eyes of which cover more than 30,000 acres in one single exposure from an altitude of 15,000 feet. At 20,000 feet the camera can take a photograph embracing 400 square miles. The picture has the shape of a Maltese cross and the area covered is 28 miles long and 28 miles wide.

An interesting experiment in rapid development and transmission of aerial photographs will be staged early in April when rapid-fire photography and telegraphic transmission of pictures will join hands in sending photographs of President Hoover's home at Palo Alto to Washington and other eastern cities within half an hour after the photographs are taken. This will be done by means of the Air Corps' quick development installed in an observation plane, which will be piloted by Lt. Guy Kirksey.

There will be several night photographic missions demanding the use of the Army's latest flashlight bomb, which throws a light equal to 5,000,000 candle power and weighs 35 pounds. The bomb is released by the photographer and is suspended under a parachute, which also acts as a reflector. The bomb is usually set to "explode" when it is 200 feet below and 300 feet behind the photographic plane. The camera is operated by a photo-electric cell which trips the shutter at the exact moment of the maximum intensity of the flare.

Though it has not been definitely decided, it is also possible that the photographic mission may include some long-distance photographic tests. The Air Corps has had considerable success along these lines. It will be recalled that last summer Capt. Stevens, internationally famous aeronautical photographer and chief photographic expert of the Air Corps, took photographs of Mt. Rainier from a distance of about 275 miles. The lens used in this camera is red, but of so dark a shade that to the human eye it appears coal black.

Use Radio "Beam"
WITH the completion of a new short-wave transmitting station at Ft. Myer, Va., the Signal Corps is introducing the beam transmission system of radio communication in handling radio traffic for the 55 Government bureaus now utilizing the facilities of War Department Message Center. This departure means that directional short waves will carry messages to the far-flung corners of continental United States and our insular possessions—the electric energy being concentrated in a given direction instead of diffused. The directional effect is achieved by use of reflectors which catch and reflect back the radio waves in a manner not dissimilar to the mirror of a searchlight in catching and reflecting rays of light.

The new radio installation at Ft. Myer is comprised of three groups of transmitting sets—one of 10,000-watt, two 1,000-watt, and three 500-watt high-frequency transmitters. Their frequency range is extensive—from 4,000 to 18,000 kilocycles—and the six sending sets have been so installed as to afford maximum flexibility in the selection of any one or group of frequencies. Beam transmission—the first attempt to handle traffic out of Washington by directional waves—will be effected on the 16,000 and 12,000 kilocycle bands. The signals on both beams have a spread of approximately 60 degrees, thus insuring coverage of the entire United States from north to south. The directional antenna system is not cramped—there being virtually unlimited room for expansion around the Ft. Myer station.

Steady Operation Planned
This transmitting station, literally lifted out of a basement and given occupancy in a new 40 by 70 foot building, is to operate on a 24-hour schedule. Hourly, day and night, it will be in direct radio communication with the following points: Seattle, San Francisco, Manila, Hawaii, Panama, San Antonio, Omaha, Chicago, Atlanta, Columbus, and Boston. In addition to establishing communication with the above mentioned land stations, these high-frequency transmitters will have etheral contact with United States Army transports at sea. The traffic at present from Washington alone varies from 1,200 to 1,500 messages a day; the short-wave transmitters at Ft. Myer being controlled and keyed remotely by enlisted radio operators in Message Center, located in the Munitions Building.

If not by design, then a happy coincidence, simultaneous with the completion of the new transmitting station at Ft. Myer, is the occupancy of new and larger quarters by the Message Center of the Signal Corps. Formerly divided by a passageway and so cramped as to be elbowing for room, Capt. Frank E. Stoner and his 52 assistants are now located in a spacious room, 60 by 100 feet, on the third floor, rear, of the Munitions Building. With a single file of 14 radio operating desks and with a radio routing desk at the left—associated with an automatic message carrier system leading to the main Message Center routing desk—the system in handling a traffic of 1,500 messages per day is bereft of any confusion and without that bustle that you might expect in a radio operating room of such wide ramifications.

Patagonia or Boston
This is a globe-girdling communication system. While its direct radio communication is limited to continental United States, its reach is not circumscribed. By interlinking this radio net with the telegraph and cable companies, domestic and trans-oceanic telephones, and international short-wave radio circuits, a message originating here could as easily find its destination in Patagonia as in Boston. The radio receiving and routing desk is at present directing into the channels of cable, radio and telegraph approximately 1,500 messages each day.

The enlarged and constantly expanding facilities of the Message Center are the results of the efforts of Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, CSO, and Capt. Frank E. Stoner, actively in charge. With the Federal Farm Board and the Census Bureau as recent users of this radio system, a total of 55 Government bureaus now draft upon this communication net—and without cost to the respective branches of the Federal Government. Eventually, the large Government departments are to be associated with Message Center by teletype circuits—thus eliminating messengers in delivering messages to and from the Message Center.

Air Notes
THE Navy Department has let a contract for six N2Y-1 airplanes, to the Fleet Aircraft, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. These planes are the ordinary commercial type of two seater training plane, and will be used at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., for training purposes. The contract price was $35,337.06.

A contract was also let to the Wright Aeronautical Corporation for 72 model R-1820 air-cooled engine at a cost of $527,940.90. The main feature that distinguishes these engines from the air-cooled engines now in service is the increased horsepower. These engines are rated at 575 h. p. and are of the nine-cylinder radial type.

The Air Corps has just awarded contracts for new airplanes which will involve an expenditure from AC appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, of $2,909,573.30. Of this sum, $701,435.80 covers a contract with the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company of Buffalo, N. Y., for 50 Model A-3B Attack planes, together with spare parts and necessary engineering data. When deliveries on this contract will have been completed, the Air Corps will have a total of 78 A-3B attack planes, in as much as 28 of them are already in production and are being delivered under a prior contract. This new type attack plane is powered with a Curtiss D-12-E water-cooled engine.

The Keystone Aircraft Corporation of Bristol, Pa., was awarded a contract for 73 bombardment planes, spare parts, and engineering data, at a total cost of $2,208,137.50. Each of these giant bombers will be powered with two Pratt and Whitney 525 horsepower "Hornet" air-cooled engines.

The procurement of new airplanes from funds which may become available for the fiscal year 1931 is being held up until the appropriation bill now before Congress has been passed and approved by the President.

Fechet Commends Corkille
FOR his coolness, courage and judgment in an emergency which would have justified his resorting to his parachute in order to save his life, Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, Ch. of AC, addressed a letter of commendation to 1st Lt. John D. Corkille, AC, on duty with the flying branch of the materiel division, Wright Field.

While flight-testing an airplane at an altitude of 7,000 feet, a faulty carburetor caused the engine to cease functioning. In the consequent flooding of the carburetor, the raw gasoline pouring from the scoop was blown by the slip-stream along the fuselage and into the bottom of the pilot's cockpit. This gasoline ignited and caused a serious fire in the cockpit. Instead of abandoning the plane, Lt. Corkille waited until the fire subsided and then proceeded to land the airplane safely at its home field.

Lt. Corkille is one of the veteran flyers of the Air Corps. He served as the pilot for Capt. Albert W. Stevens, AC, on the remarkable photographic expedition last summer to the scenic northwest, when aerial photographs of mountain peaks were taken from a distance of 227 miles.

Would Refund Flying Pay
MR. REED of New York has introduced a resolution—H. J. Res. 265, providing that any officer of a staff department who prior to Aug. 1, 1921, performed duty requiring regular and frequent aerial flights and drew the additional pay authorized by law, and who has been compelled to repay to the United States the money so drawn or has had the same stopped against his pay, shall be entitled to reimbursement from the current appropriation for pay of the Army, and ratifying all payments heretofore made to officers of staff departments for such duty.

CONTROVERTS McSWAIN.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal: AMONG the many errors and false inferences contained in Mr. McSwain's interview in your columns of March 1 there are two that are especially grievous. The first is his statement that neither Congress nor the War Department in 1920 intended that the promotion list be formed as it is at present. The second is his statement that every one except a "few professionals" favored a revision of the promotion list. Let us look at the plain uncontroverted facts of the matter:

A. In 1920 the War Department specifically recommended a promotion list based on length of service. The first reason was to do away with the inconsistencies of branch promotion. The second was that the inequalities of war time promotion were so great and the efficiency records so sketchy that for war time officers length of commissioned service was the best measure of rank. Further they realized that the examinations for selection of emergency officers for permanent commissions would be so hurried that they would be of little value in determining rank.

B. Congress knew and approved of these reasons and understood exactly the meaning of the section of the National Defense Act that formed the promotion list.

C. In 1928 an officer brought suit against the Secretary of War demanding that his position on the promotion list be changed, claiming an incorrect interpretation of the National Defense Act. The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia dismissed the suit and ruled that the Act had been correctly interpreted. (Lyons vs. Weeks, 49 Wash. Law Review, 439.)

D. In 1921 the War Department gave all officers in the service an opportunity to protest their places on the promotion list. Less than four per cent protested and their complaints took over 50 different and conflicting forms.

E. In 1924 the Secretary of War appointed a board of general officers, presided over by Maj. Gen. Shanks, to make an exhaustive study of the promotion list and the effect of the many proposed remedies. After thorough investigation the board recommended that the promotion list be not changed.

F. In 1927 a second board, headed by Maj. Gen. Patrick, was appointed for the same purpose. Three members of the board, Generals Ely, Brown and Booth, afterward testified before the committee of Congress that when the board was convened they each were convinced that the promotion list should be revised and that the board would do so. This board caused 58 other boards to be appointed at all the larger posts and stations, with instructions that representatives of all groups on the promotion list be represented. Of these 58 boards, 42 were definitely opposed to any revision, and of the remaining 16 no two were in agreement as to the manner of change required or the method of effecting it. And in spite of its original intention, the "Patrick" board recommended to Congress that the promotion list be not revised.

G. In 1929 the Army and Navy Journal made a poll of the 10,000 officers on the promotion list. The results of the poll showed that the officers in the service were opposed definitely to any change in the list.

How can the revisionists, through Mr. McSwain, claim that they have not been justly dealt with? The answer is that the whole agitation is engineered by a small self-seeking group of non-combatant officers in Washington who are willing to knife any chances we have of pay increase to attain their selfish ends. It is pleasing to note that many who in 1928 and 1929 honestly believed in the need for

FAVORS MERIT MEDAL

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:

A REVIVAL of the "Order of Military Merit," mentioned in your issue of March 22 is to be hoped for. Nations may reap some degree of material gain from war, but the man at the front has to find his reward elsewhere. While your article states it is proposed to present this declaration to soldiers who have received the silver citation star, it is presumable that the word "soldiers" includes commissioned as well as enlisted personnel. It is also to be hoped that consideration will be given to all existing citations for American decorations, the quality of which was judged insufficient to justify award of the Distinguished Service Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Such a decoration will serve two purposes: it will protect these three mentioned decorations, and (equally important) it will enable the Nation to evidence its thanks to some of the men who put all of their weight into the traces during the war.

If adopted, it would be desirable that the decoration take the form of a medal with appropriately striped ribbon—say Continental buff and purple—and not in the form of a pin or other similar device. The pins showing divisional insignia prescribed for wear with the uniform have never been worn; they are too suggestive of scholastic fraternal organizations to a proper appendage of military uniform. Moreover, we have a goodly quantity of miscellaneous metal devices on our uniform as it is.

Back Pay Movement

appointed by the Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce Departments to consider this subject of pay readjustment, has been duly convened and has recommended the adoption of a new pay schedule for our entire military and naval personnel, active and retired, and including reserves legally called into service, and

Whereas, the Executive Committee of the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce is of the opinion that the enactment of appropriate legislation by the Congress and will materially remedy this present deficiency of pay; will promote a healthy flow of desirable personnel to our reserves; will greatly curtail and prevent resignations from our military establishments; and will markedly enhance the efficiency of all our land and naval forces as included in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and Coast and Geodetic Survey; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Executive Committee of the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce, believing that the action of said interdepartmental board in recommending a readjustment of pay for the services mentioned is one that it only fair, just and reasonable, does heartily endorse the action of said board in that regard and recommend the early approval thereof.

Discuss Private Bills

THE Gherardi, Leary and Parsons private promotion bills are still hanging fire.

Although the bills of the first two were favorably voted upon by the subcommittee of the Naval Affairs Committee over two weeks ago, neither have been reported to the full committee as yet. Two things are holding them up.

Though agreement has been reached that Comdr. Leary will have to be chosen by a selection board of the Navy, who will consider his ability for engineering duty only, a difference of opinion has developed between Chairman Britten and Representative Burdick, chairman of the private bills subcommittee, as to his number on the list of captains if promoted.

Mr. Britten feels that he should be placed at the end of the list, whereas Mr. Burdick takes the position that if an injustice has been done to Comdr. Leary, that it should be entirely remedied, and Leary should follow the captain on the list he would have followed in the normal order of promotion.

A review of the legal basis of the Parsons case has been asked and a brief submitted to the Navy Department. If the request is acceded to, all three of the bills will be probably held up some time, as, though the members of the committee are agreed in the Gherardi matter, all will be reported at once.

N. A. Resignations

RESIGNATIONS OF twenty members of the June graduating class have been accepted so far, the Bureau of Navigation announced this week. This is the first time in some years that resignations have been accepted previous to some service at sea following graduation.

Of the class of 409, first classmen, 181 have qualified for aviation training. Four will be assigned to the Supply Corps and 25 to the Marine Corps. It was given out that nearly 14 per cent of the class will probably fail to pass physical or academic examinations.

Edgewood Loses Band

THE Secretary of War has directed that the band of the 1st Chemical Regiment, Edgewood Arsenal, be rendered inactive April 4, and its personnel transferred in grades and rating to the band of the Air Corps Primary Flying School, March Field, Calif.

Butner To Ft. Eustis

BRIG. GEN. HENRY W. BUTNER, whose appointment to that rank was made last week, has been assigned to the command at Ft. Eustis, Va., being relieved of duty at the Field Artillery Board, Ft. Bragg, N. C.

He will first go to Langley Field, Va., for a one month's course of instruction at the Air Corps Tactical School after which he will take another one month's course of instruction at the Coast Artillery School, Ft. Monroe. Then he will assume his command at Ft. Eustis.

Military Colleges Meet

REPORTS of achievement in the solving of vital problems of education marked the seventeenth annual meeting of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States this week in the Mayflower Hotel in Washington. The meetings were held March 25, 26 and 27.

In the words of one of the speakers the most impressive thing about the military colleges and schools is the "ruthless way in which they diagnose their educational problems." This was evident even to the laymen who attended their meetings. There was no dodging of facts, but all records and figures were subjected to the closest scrutiny and criticized most severely in an effort to reach the highest state of perfection in educational systems.

Elect Officers

The association closed by elevating its vice president, Col. Thomas D. Landon, of the Bordentown Military Institute, Bordentown, N. J., to the presidency, succeeding Col. Thomas H. Russell, of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va. As vice president, Col. Roy F. Farrand, of St. John's Military Academy, Delafield, Wis., was selected. Lt. Col. A. M. Hitch, of Kemper Military School, Boonville, Mo., was re-elected to the important post of secretary-treasurer.

The first session of the convention was addressed by Brig. Gen. Milton F. Davis, of New York Military Academy, who is chairman of the committee on advertising, and by Mr. Lawrence Durbin.

In the afternoon there was an address by Lt. Col. Ralph M. Parker, of the general staff, on the subject, "Progress and Problems of the ROTC," and reports of the committee on relations with the War Department, which was presented by the chairman, Dr. C. A. Plumley, of the Norwich University. Among the visiting officers at that session were Brig. Gen. Edward L. King, assistant chief of staff for G-3; Maj. R. E. O'Brien, of the Army War College, and Maj. G. M. Parker, of the ROTC section. A round-table discussion followed.

Wednesday morning Col. C. R. Endsley, of the Tennessee Military Institute, chairman of the Committee on College Records, reported. Graduates of military schools have shown constantly better scholastic records as freshmen in American colleges in succeeding years, Col. Endsley declared.

Col. Endsley, as chairman of the association's committee on college records, has made an exhaustive study of records of graduates of military schools in colleges during the past five years. This study has covered some 275 colleges and universities in this country and the records of many hundreds of students have been studied.

Maj. Holt Talks

In the afternoon there were talks by Maj. H. H. Holt, of the St. John's Military Academy, on the subject, "The Use of Standardized Tests and Intelligence Quotients in Ten Military Schools During the Past Year"; by Col. F. L. Hunt, of Culver Military Academy, on the Purpose

THE following are the purposes of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States:

1. Unification of their aims and methods.
2. Cooperation with the War Department in furthering its plans for military efficiency and training.
3. To foster the spirit of patriotism and the cultivating that splendid type of citizen soldier, who loves peace and will even dare to maintain it.

subject, "The Advantages and Defects of Objective Testing"; Maj. H. A. Hinman, of New York Military Academy, on the subject, "A Comparison of Achievement Test Scores with I. Q.'s and School Grades for Ninth Grade Cadets"; and Charles K. Taylor, of the Educational Records Bureau, on the subject, "The Development of the Educational Records Bureau and Possible Future Services in Relation to College Admission." The address of Dr. Ben D. Wood, of Columbia University, concluded the session.

Wednesday the annual dinner was held. It was an unusual affair, with 112 guests present. Col. Thomas H. Russell, retiring president, presided and Col. Landon served as toastmaster.

Dr. Lewis' Speech

American colleges were roundly scored for their methods of teaching by Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College and former president of George Washington University, in an address at the banquet. "America has made a fetish of college education," Dr. Lewis told the educators.

"This has resulted in thousands of young people being in our institutions of higher learning who for their own good and that of society in general should be elsewhere.

"The most important function of schools and colleges is to teach pupils how to think," he continued, "but under present conditions with our complicated programs and multitudinous extra curriculum activities we do not give them time to think. The quiet of the academic grove has yielded to the clamor of the market place. From kindergarten to graduate school our slogan is 'Step lively, please.'"

Hurley Talks

Dr. Lewis was unsparing in his criticism of present college standards. He said that the whole system of education was wrong in that freshmen are placed under the guidance of young and inexperienced instructors just out of graduate schools when they should be under the influence of the greatest professors at the beginning of their college career.

"In our public schools today, we place those who are to receive their first introduction to thinking processes at the tender mercy of the youngest and most inexperienced teachers on the staff—when those teachers show some ability we promote them to the higher grades."

Sessions of the association, which have drawn the outstanding superintendents and presidents of leading military institutions to Washington will continue through today at the Mayflower.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, another speaker of the evening, praised military training in schools and colleges as providing "an antidote to that spirit of lawlessness which pervades our nation." He said that the essence of military training was to inculcate in men an appreciation of the relation of the individual to the team.

Military training educational institutions and the Reserve Officers Training Camps were held up as an important means of combating the influence of pacifists' organizations by Brig. Gen. Edward L. King, assistant chief of staff. He declared that the work of these schools and the ROTC "must be maintained efficiently and effectively if the safety of the Nation in time of war is to be guaranteed."

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, former commandant of the Marine Corps, and now superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute, was another speaker.

Thursday morning's session was addressed by Dr. Bancroft Beatley, associate professor of education at Harvard University, on the subject "The New Secondary Education in Relation to the Problem of College Entrance," and by Dr. David Allan Robertson, assistant director of the American Council on Education, on the subject "The Will in Education."

Hurley Addresses Military College Officials

REMARKS of Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, at the annual banquet, the Association of the Military Colleges and Schools of the United States, at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C., March 26, 1930, at 7:00 p. m.:

"It is a privilege to participate in your annual meeting. The War Department appreciates the far-reaching and commendable activities of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States. You are making a great contribution to our national defense system. Military educational institutions have a wholesome influence upon the nation as a whole. In your system of instruction and in your activities you have steadfastly held before you John Milton's statement, that:

"A complete and generous education fits a man to perform justly, skillfully and magnanimously all the offices both public and private of peace and war."

"The essence of military training is the inculcation of the voluntary subordination of self to the needs of the social organism. You teach effectively that the team is more important than the player.

"In this you offer a refreshing contrast to the trend of present-day methods which are toward the development of individualism at the expense of cooperative teamwork. The scope of present-day knowledge is so vast, the interdependence of human beings is so accentuated, that the individual faces imperative necessity of adjusting himself to political and social conditions if he would be a law-abiding and efficient citizen.

"Individualism to an extent is necessary. Something is needed in our educational system which will teach our future leaders the vital importance of doing the thing that is to be done at the time when it should be done. Military training in our schools and colleges, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, provides an antidote to that spirit of lawlessness which pervades our nation. You do more than turn out scholars. You develop men. Men who understand the relation of the man to the team and who are prepared to adjust themselves to the complex conditions of twentieth century civilization. All education should make a clear distinction between individualism and lawlessness. A citizen can be individualistic and yet lend himself to team work and submit himself to constituted authority. Our Government was created for the protection of the individual's rights, but it was not created for the individual. It was created to maintain the rights of all the people. The welfare of all the people is superior to the desire of any individual. Our entire nation will profit through the same measure of understanding of this subject that you possess."

Report Hospital Bill

the Bureau of Yards and Docks, and Rear Adm. J. L. Latimer, commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard were heard by the committee on last Friday. Adm. Parsons told the committee that after looking over the three sites, he considered that the one on private land along Broad St., the old Expedition Grounds, is the most suitable.

Adm. Latimer agreed with him on this matter but said that he had recommended the site within the yard, as one the whole being the most desirable, considering the additional cost of having to buy the land. He had no idea what the Navy would have to pay, if it wished to purchase this land, he stated, at this time. An effort was being made, he added, to obtain this information in as quiet a manner as possible.

As to the site to north of the railroad tracks, where the League Island Park is located, Adm. Latimer testified that he had taken the matter up with members of the Philadelphia Park Commission and they had refused to give up any land designed for park purposes. It is the only breathing spot in South Philadelphia, the admiral pointed out, and the city desires to use it as a park and playground.

"I discussed the question of obtaining land from the city with William S. Vare, a man of some influence in Philadelphia," Adm. Latimer said, "and he told me he would oppose the donation of any land for a hospital on the north side of the railroad tracks where the park is being developed, but that he would be glad to help me procure the land to the south of the tracks (the land subsequently offered)."

Members of the committee put many questions to Adm. Parsons during the course of the hearing.

He declared that there would have to be considerable filling to bring the level of the proposed location in the Navy Yard up to that of the rest of the yard. Including the adjoining land this job would probably cost about $100,000. It would take about a year to accomplish this, he stated, but would not necessitate a delay in construction, as it would probably take this long to draw up the plans.

Financial Digest

IN a recent bulletin, the Standard Collateral Share Corporation lays down five rules to keep in mind in selecting stocks for investment.

"One—The company should be operating in a basic industry—its product should be one essential to normal living conditions or to an industry that produces an essential article. It should not be an article to meet a passing fancy or changing fashion.

"Two—The company should have been in existence long enough (4 or 5 years) to demonstrate the ability and wisdom of its management.

"Three—The management should be a developed and continuing organization and not dependent on the life of one man. It should have shown its ability to meet reasonable competition.

"Four—The company should have demonstrated earning power as indicated by a continuous and satisfactory dividend record over the immediately preceding years.

"Five—The company's surplus should be ample to carry it over periods of depression and should show a continuous growth."

Davison Rues ROTC Losses

DECLARING the ORC to be fundamentally sound, an unsurpassed reservoir of ability and patriotism, F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, at a banquet of Manhattan Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association of the United States in New York, on March 17, deplored the wastage of ROTC graduates, the chief source of future ORC procurement. Keeping these young men in the ORC will require the united efforts of the War Department, Corps Area commanders and their staffs, and Reserve Officers throughout the country.

Mr. Davison stated that generally speaking membership in the ROA was evidence of the individual's wholehearted assumption of his duties as an officer of the Army of the United States.

Naval Conference

fear felt that unwarranted concessions will be made if any compromise is attempted to meet her demand for an increased ratio in eight-inch gun cruisers.

In the Washington Conference Japan won a tactical victory. Even with her smaller ratio in battleships extended to all types of ships, she absolutely insured herself against the possibility of successful attack by American naval forces by our concessions in agreeing to refrain from maintaining a naval base in the Western Pacific. Naval strategists are a unit in declaring that a fleet relatively stronger than Japan's as provided by the 5-5-3 ratio could not carry out a campaign in her home waters with the nearest base in Hawaii.

The contention is advanced that Japan's inferior ratio was bought and paid for, and many believe the price was prohibitive, by our agreeing to the status quo of Pacific fortifications, and that any yielding to her demand for a larger ratio of big cruisers would upset the existing balance and entail future danger to us.

Like the proposed consultative pact, any concessions to Japan must run the gauntlet of Senate hostility with grave doubt of final ratification.

USMA IN 18 BALL GAMES

West Point (Special)—Listing 18 games, including the New York Giants and Yankees, the Army baseball schedule for this season was released this week by Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics. "Moose" McCormick, head coach and former Giant pinch hitter, has a squad of 52 cadets, the maximum number authorized, competing for places on the varsity and plebe nines.

Beauchamp, a pitcher, and Lindquist, outfield, are the only regulars from last year available this Spring, and McCormick is making strenuous efforts to develop members of last year's plebe team into first string players. Other members of last year's squad who got into a number of games and have reported this season are Malloy, Carmichael, Humber and Bowman.

Early signs indicate that the entire infield may be composed of sophomores, while in the outfield Bowman appears to be the only upper classman certain of making the first team.

The complete schedule is:
Apr. 9—U. of Vermont; 12, Conn. Aggies; 14, N. Y. Giants; 16, Wesleyan; 19, Haverford; 23, Lehigh; 26, U. of Maryland (at College Park); 30, N. Y. U.

May 3—Columbia; 7, U. of New Hampshire; 10, Union College; 14, Lafayette; 16, N. Y. Yankees; 17, Fordham; 21, Swarthmore; 24, Dartmouth; 28, Georgetown; 31, Bucknell U. (at Lewisburg).

POINT CAPTAINS CHOSEN

West Point (Special)—Captains of Army boxing, swimming, hockey and wrestling teams have been elected for next year. They are: Boxing, Eugene L. Brown, Nashville, Tenn.; wrestling, Merle L. Fisher, Savanna, Ill.; swimming, William A. Davis, East Orange, N. J., and hockey, John K. Waters, Lutherville, Md. They are all in the class of 1931.

Brown, the new boxing captain, has not been defeated in two years of intercollegiate boxing. He was developed by Billy Cavanaugh and boxes in the 135-pound class. His father is Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, Chief of Engineers. Davis, the new swimming captain, holds the Military Academy record for the 100-yard swim. Both in 1929 and 1930 he led the team in the number of points scored. In addition to two letters in swimming, he has a major A for track.

Waters, goalie on the hockey team, just elected captain of that sport, during the past season stopped 349 shots of a total of 372. He had rarely been on the ice prior to entering West Point.

Fisher, wrestling captain, was developed by Tom Jenkins, former world's champion and now head wrestling coach here. Fisher made the team in 1929 and won his letter wrestling in the middle-weight class. This year he again won his letter.

Meet on Medal Awards

achievement since the limiting date of the original act.

It was also developed at the hearing that the War Department in considering the award of the Order of Merit or Order of Purple Heart, as reported in the Journal last week, plans to make this medal in bronze to conform to the original design and with a purple ribbon. Gen. Bowley stated that no definite decision had yet been reached on the subject of reviving this medal, but in the event it is revived it is likely legislation will be necessary in order that there might be no conflict with existing laws on the subject of decorations.

Further hearings will be held at which representatives of the American Legion will be given an opportunity to present the views of the Legion urging removal of the time limit in order that many persons who served in the World War whom they believe to be deserving might be given the desired recognition. No definite date was set for this hearing.

Report N. O. Bill

THE bill authorizing an appropriation of $160,000 for modernization of the Naval Observatory was favorably reported by the House Committee on Naval Affairs this week.

Capt. Freeman, superintendent of the observatory, testified at the hearing last Tuesday, and the director of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac was also heard by the committee. The provision requiring the approval of the Fine Arts Commission and the Secretary of the Navy for the buildings was stricken out.

Field Manual's Progress

PREPARATION of field manuals has progressed to the point where a fairly reliable idea can be given as to their exact status, including an estimate of the approximate dates they will be ready for issue to troops. The War Department has recently released a statement explaining and amplifying information on the field manual project.

The primary object of the field manual is to make available in condensed form for ready reference in the field the approved principles, doctrines and methods governing the training and employment of the various arms, together with such reference data and regulations as are needed by them for mobilization, training and field service. They will be sufficiently comprehensive to be used as a basis for garrison and school training, supplemented when necessary by other authorized publications.

Replace Most of TR.

Although the new field manuals will, in a large part, replace the existing training regulations, all of the latter will not be superseded. Neither will the field manuals supersede to any great extent the technical regulations and training manuals. Such specialized publications not having a general distribution, can be taken into the field with the equipment to which they pertain, or by the specialist who needs them. In general, the training regulations which contain material as follows will not be replaced by the field manuals:

- (1) For purely peace-time training.
- (2) For mobilization, training, and field use which have, for lack of space, been omitted in whole or in part from the field manuals.
- (3) Of a special and not general use, or not suitable or desirable in a field manual.

As an illustration of the extent to which field manuals will replace training regulations, the Basic Field Manual, Volume II (Infantry Drill Regulations), recently printed by the United States Infantry Association, will eventually eliminate twenty existing training regulations.

Comprehensive.

The policy of the War Department in connection with the preparation of the field manuals contemplates that the manual of each arm will contain all the information needed by that arm for mobilization, training and field service, except such material as is otherwise contained in the basic manuals and other publications retained and available for these purposes. They will not ordinarily repeat matter contained in the basic field manuals and other publications that will be available to the arm for mobilization, training and field service. Such matter as is desirable which is carried in the manual of one arm may be repeated in the manuals of the other arms, since these manuals are distributed in general only to the arm to which they pertain.

The following list shows the status of the field manual project. The names of the manuals, their division into volumes, a short description of their contents and an indication as to their status of preparation are shown.

It is to be noted that some of these manuals are to be printed initially by The Adjutant General, and others by the chiefs of the arms and services or some agency related to such chiefs. The regulations printed under the supervision of the chiefs of arms and service are tentative. They will be revised after a certain elapsed period and then published by The Adjutant General for distribution as are other official regulations. The lack of funds may not permit of the printing and distribution of all the volumes listed for publication during 1930.

Volume VIII. Operations of Combined Arms (Small Units) (O. C. A.).—The principles, doctrines, and methods governing the tactical employment of combined arms with reference to smaller units. (To be printed by The Adjutant General about July 1, 1930.)

Field Manual for the Arms:

The manual for each arm contains, primarily, the principles, doctrines, and methods governing the employment of that arm, and pertinent data. Infantry Field Manual (I. F. M.):

Volume I. Units other than Tanks. (To be printed by The Adjutant General, end 1930.)

Volume II. Tank Units. (To be printed by The Adjutant General about July 1, 1930.)

Cavalry Field Manual (C. F. M.): (Printed and distributed (limited) by the Chief of Cavalry; extra copies commercially through Book Department, Cavalry School.)

Field Artillery Field Manual (F. A. F. M.):

(To be printed by The Adjutant General, end 1930.)

Coast Artillery Field Manual (C. A. F. M.):

Volume I. Harbor Defense, Railway and Tractor-Drawn Units. (Being printed by the Chief of Coast Artillery and due for limited distribution about April 1, 1930.)

Volume II. Antiaircraft Units. (To be printed by the Chief of Coast Artillery and distributed (limited) by same agency about July 1, 1930.)

Engineer Field Manual (E. F. M.): Volume I. Engineer Troops. (Printed and distributed (limited) by Chief of Engineers.)

Volume II. Military Field Engineering. (To be printed by The Adjutant General about July 1, 1930.)

Signal Corps Field Manual (S. C. F. M.):

(To be printed by The Adjutant General about July 1, 1930.)

The evolution of the field manuals has been a work of large magnitude. It has required careful planning, constant experiment, and close coordination. Although in its inception, it was expected to be only a compilation of training regulations in convenient form, it actually has been a revision of the majority of the existing training regulations. The volumes concerning the arms and services were prepared by them and coordinated by a Board of Review in the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, composed of representatives of the offices of the Chiefs of Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery and Coast Artillery.

Pay Committee Idle

The Marine Corps to enter business, will also appear.

Favorable recommendation by the Executive Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce on inclusion of pay legislation for the services on the agenda of the chamber's convention was obtained this week. This action allows consideration by the full chamber of a resolution urging a pay raise for the services upon Congress. The resolution adopted by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce has been selected from among the many passed by member bodies, as the model for the one to be submitted to the meeting of the national chamber at its next meeting.

It reads as follows:

"Whereas an 'Interdepartmental Board' consisting of a representative of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service has made a study of the pay schedules in these departments and has offered recommendations for readjustment of said schedules, which recommendations are now under consideration, and

"Whereas there is no field of public service where pay schedules are so obsolete, so full of complexities and of injustices which mean discouragement to those in the service and an unduly high rate of resignations to the great injury of the service, and

"Whereas since 1908 the average pay in these services has decreased three per cent while the average in Foreign Service has increased 175 per cent; in civil service (mech.) 153 per cent; in the Public Schools of the District of Columbia 145 per cent; of assistant secretaries 111 per cent; of post office inspectors 92 per cent; of civil service (clerical) 87 per cent; of the judiciary 62 per cent; of Members of Congress 33 per cent; of Cabinet Members 25 per cent; and

"Whereas existing pay schedules in the services mentioned in the first paragraph of this resolution are based upon the value of the dollar twenty years ago; with a private in the Army receiving $21 a month and a second lieutenant who must be a college or Military Academy graduate receiving $143 a month, the private becoming perhaps a master sergeant at about $157 a month and the second lieutenant becoming perhaps a colonel at about $6,400 a year, after careers which are difficult, dangerous and involving great social and financial responsibilities, with promotion coming roughly about every eight years only, and

"Whereas it is impossible for those in the service under existing pay schedules to maintain a home and rear families in the surroundings enjoyed by their civilian contemporaries, resulting in continual worry over financial matters, to the impairment of their efficiency, thereby penalizing the whole country, and

"Whereas adequate national defense and the well-being of the entire nation depend to the greatest extent upon attainment and maintenance of a high standard in the aforementioned services,

"Be it therefore resolved, That the membership of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce recommend to the board of directors the endorsement of legislation having for its purpose the just and reasonable readjustment of the above referred to pay schedules and urges the members of Congress from the State of Ohio to support such legislation, and

"Be it further resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to the said members of Congress and to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and all other organizations affiliated with the Ohio Chamber of Commerce."

Inasmuch as the American Federation of Labor has already endorsed the pay movement and is actively working for it, the likelihood of similar action by the United States Chamber of Commerce will give the proposed pay raise for the services the backing of both labor and capital, which should carry some weight with the final decision.
